Carmel Valley may require sewer system by 1975

If Carmel Valley continues growing at the present rate, it will require a sewer system by 1975.

This prediction, which carries with it the implication of a future legal requirement, is included in the Interim Water Quality Control Plan prepared by the Central Coastal Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The plan was approved last week by the State Water Resources Control Board in Sacramento, and was prepared to satisfy federal and state requirements for construction grants and water quality control.

It will serve as a guide for water quality management and for waste treatment plant construction in the next two years, until fully-developed basin and regional plans are completed.

Supervisor Willard Branson of Carmel Valley, who serves as chairman of the CCRWQCB, said the plan is not specific about sewage facilities for Carmel Valley.

"The language is broad, but it does anticipate the need for a sewage facility or collection system if the present rate of development continues," Branson said. "It is possible there could be a treatment plant located midway up the Valley."

Branson said that the first draft of this plan, prepared by State engineers, included several conditions for septic tanks "that would have amounted to condemnation of thousands of vacant hillside lots."

These provisions, eliminated at the insistence of the CCRWQCB, would have placed a total prohibition on septic tanks within 100 feet of a natural drainageway or on any slopes with an average grade of 25 percent. They would also have required a minimum of one acre for a new septic tank, regardless of the soil conditions.

Branson said the regional board felt these requirements were "not reasonable. The restrictions were almost prohibitive and took away local control.

"There was no definition of a 'natural drainageway' and the one-acre limitation was not flexible enough. It would mean someone with a half-acre of permeable soil couldn't build on it, while another person with an acre of solid granite could build."

Branson said all these provisions were amended to bring septic tank standards back to where they are now, under the existing restrictions of the County Health Department. Present regulations require a check of soil conditions before septic tanks are built on hillside lots, and specify the minimum land necessary for a drainfield.

"The new septic tanks being installed now work quite well," Branson said. "It is some of the old ones that have had failures."

The interim plan includes this statement in the Carmel-Point Pinos section:

"The Carmel Sanitary District will complete an expansion and conversion of its present treatment plant to a three million gallons per day activated sludge plant in early 1972. The current outfall into Carmel Bay will have to be replaced with another disposal method during the next five years to protect the waters of Carmel Bay."

The section continues:

"In addition to the treatment and disposal facilities already mentioned, this sub-basin will require the construction of sewage collection systems in several rapidly developing areas. The Laguna Seca-Hidden Hills area can be served by an extension to the present Monterey or Seaside systems, or by the system which will be built to serve Carmel Valley. Carmel Valley will require a sewer system before 1975 if present pace of development continues. Both of these projects are now scheduled for 1975."

July 28 Odello hearing to stay in Salinas

Dr. Edward Marcucci, chairman of the Monterey County Planning Commission, announced yesterday that the July 28 hearing on the proposed rezoning and development of the Odello property will be held in Salinas as scheduled.

Several individuals and groups have been attempting to get the public hearing moved to Carmel, in order to accommodate the large crowd that is expected to be present.

The following is Marcucci's statement:

"It has been suggested that the Odello hearing be heard in Sunset Auditorium to accommodate the expected large attendance. I discussed this proposal with other commissioners and Planning Director Ed DeMars, and it is the consensus that the availability of documents and plans, plus certain physical properties present in the supervisors' chambers, would make Sunset Auditorium impractical.

"The meeting will be held in Salinas as originally planned. Our sincere appreciation for the understanding of all concerned citizens in this matter."

Property Owners hear talk on insurance rates

John Barr, supervising engineer for the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, will be the guest speaker at tonight's (Thursday) general membership meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the meeting hall at Carmel Valley Manor. The public is invited.

Barr will speak on fire insurance and related issues of fire protection with relevance for all of Carmel Valley, not just residents in the mid-Valley.

Tomorrow (Friday) night's meeting called by Supervisor Willard Branson to discuss fire protection specifically for the mid-Valley has been shifted to Brey Hall at Carmel High School. This meeting will start at 7:30 p.m., and will be attended by various county officials and representatives from nearby fire districts.

Branson has urged all property owners living in the area between Rancho Fiesta Rd. on the east and the San Carlos Ranch Road on the west to attend this meeting, which will provide important background information and offer some guidance to mid-Valley residents on fire protection.

This meeting will serve as a prelude to another fire meeting on Monday, July 19, at 8 p.m. at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. At this meeting, mid-Valley residents will be asked to settle on one specific plan to provide fire protection starting next July.

Important school board meeting next Wednesday

The Carmel school board will elect a new president at its annual organization meeting next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Brey Hall at Carmel High School.

This will mark the first meeting for two newly-elected members of the board, Mrs. Pamela Smith and Dr. Charles Snorf.

Several major items are on the evening's agenda, including adoption of the course of study for Carmel High School for 1971-72 and approval of a publication budget for the next fiscal year. The latter will probably be adjusted to include a 5 or 6 percent cost of living salary increase for teachers.

The board will also consider a new school lunch program for next year, which calls for replacing the present full-scale cafeteria operation at Tularcitos School with special "hot pack" lunches prepared at Carmel High School and sent out to all grammar schools at noontime. This is an expansion of the "hot pack" lunch program used at Carmel School last spring.

Business manager Walter Hinton is also recommending that the hot pack lunches be used to supplement the service now available at Middle School. A small bus, formerly used on the Cachagua route, will be converted to a food truck if the plan is approved.

By consolidating food preparation at the high school, he said the district would save 12-man hours a day in costs. However, because of some resignations among cafeteria employees, all remaining workers can be used in the new operation.

Carmel Savings now named Palo Alto-Salinas Savings

Carmel Savings and Loan Association has now officially become Palo Alto-Salinas Savings. A joint announcement made Tuesday by Barnet J. Segal, president of Carmel Savings and Firmin A. Gryp, president of PS told of the consummation of the merger which began with negotiations last year.

Agreement in principle had been reached last January, and approval of the respective stockholders followed. Application was made to governmental authorities in early June.

Assets of the 16-office association, according to Gryp, will exceed one-half billion dollars. Carmel Savings with one office had assets of over $25 million while the PS Association, prior to merger, had assets in excess of $377 million.

With offices spanning northern California from King City and Carmel in the south to Oakland and Menlo Park in the north, the 79-year old association will be one of the ten largest in California.

Beloved Postmaster Sam Brandt dies at 55

Sam Brandt, Carmel Valley's genial postmaster for the last 21 years, lost a battle with cancer on Tuesday.

A popular and respected community leader, he died at Community Hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks. He was 55.

In an era of zip codes, automation and impersonal government, Mr. Brandt put the stamp of his warm, responsive personality on every aspect of the postal operation.

Not only could he greet almost all his patrons by name, he had an uncanny facility for keeping up with their multiple moves, marriages and mis-addressed mail.

When Washington ordered a drastic cutback in hours, he was adamant that the Carmel Valley Post Office would remain open Saturday mornings "so those kids at the Postgraduate School who have to leave so early in the morning and get home late at night can come in." He worked the Saturday morning shift himself, as a matter of routine, for no additional pay.

When guidelines came from Washington about what can be posted inside a U.S. post office (FBI photos and Civil Service notices) or how the place should look (good government gray), he quietly put the notices aside and went right on displaying posters for community organizations and tending the ivy growing through a cracked window at the back of the building.

Tall, slender and handsome, he seemed to have a perpetual twinkle in his eye, and the genuine warmth of his greeting softened the blow when he handed you the mail and it was nothing but bills.

He was fiercely proud of the people who worked with him -- "my kids" he affectionately called them all. One was, in fact, his child -- his daughter Tonia, who started out helping her father cancel mail as a small child and later became a regular employee.

SAM BRANDT

Even with all the small-town folksiness, he kept a sharp eye on the efficiency of his postal operation, and managed to keep pace with a growing population despite cramped quarters and no recent increase in personnel.

Two years ago Postmaster General Winton Blount vacationed in Carmel Valley and paid a friendly visit to 93924. Later he sent a personally inscribed photograph to Mr. Brandt, which now hangs in the back of the post office.

Official commendation, however, was never Mr. Brandt's main interest.

"Washington?" he once commented. "I don't work for Washington. My bosses are all the people we serve. I have about 4,500 bosses in Carmel Valley. As long as they are happy, I am. That's all that's important."

Mr. Brandt was born in Salinas and attended Stanford University. For several years he travelled around the country doing radio announcements for Philip Morris. He served with the U.S. Navy in World War II, and was commissioned postmaster for Carmel Valley in August, 1951.

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock this morning at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove. The Rev. Douglas Keating of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church officiated. Contributions to the Monterey County Cancer Society are preferred.

Mr. Brandt is survived by his wife, Miriam, of 10 Village Drive; four daughters, Tonia, Kim, Shawn, and Rory; three sons, Chris, Craig and Chip Sundlee, all of Carmel Valley; and a devoted group of "kids" at the Carmel Valley Post Office.

Special Odello briefing

Representatives from OLAF, the Carmel Area Coalition and other groups opposed to a high density development on the Odello property have been invited to meet with a special subcommittee of the Planning Commission on Monday to present views on rezoning and future use of the property.

The meeting, scheduled for 4 p.m. at the County Health Department, is one of a series of informal sessions on the Odello development that have been held by commissioners Edward Marcucci, Keith Evans and Leon Stutzman. This meeting is considered a background, information-gathering session only, and is not open to the general public.

The subcommittee has already met with the Odello brothers regarding possible development plans to be presented to the Planning Commission on July 28. The subcommittee will be writing a report, containing specific recommendations, to the Planning Commission before that date.

Commenting on Monday's meeting, Marcucci said: "It is to allow interested parties to see how far we've gotten along on this. This is not a meeting for us (the commissioners) to argue one side or the other, but to listen to what these people have to say, so we will have their views for our report."

Launch drive for fire protection in mid-Valley

Several persons interested in the drive to establish a County Service Area for fire protection in mid-Carmel Valley were briefed on the issues involved at a meeting held Tuesday night.

The small briefing session in the library of Carmel High School was called by the Ad Hoc Committee for Fire Protection for the Mid-Valley, which is holding a major public hearing on Monday, July 19, at 8 p.m. at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Persons at the meeting generally agreed that the mid-Valley would do well to form a service area, which is administered by the County, and contract with the State Division of Forestry to provide the required number of firemen.

Their salaries, along with the cost of purchasing fire equipment and building a small station somewhere in the mid-Valley, would be paid for by taxes assessed on the anticipated $15 million valuation of property in the area.

Committee co-chairmen Bill Brown and Michael Tancredi said that the service area would save some money by contracting with the State Division of Forestry, since administrative and some personnel costs would be shared on a pro-rate basis with other fire districts.

New redistricting plan would create three coastal supervisors

A new redistricting plan which would give Monterey County three coastal supervisors will be unveiled when the Board of Supervisors continues a public hearing on the matter at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

The latest proposal represents a concerted effort by the cities of Monterey and Salinas and several interested individuals to come up with a plan that protects local communities of interest and still divides the County into five districts of approximately 50,000 persons each.

According to this plan, Supervisor Willard Branson's district would remain virtually the same, except that part of Monterey east of the freeway would be put into Loren Smith's fourth district. All of Carmel Valley up to the Cahoon Ranch would stay in the fifth district.

Smith would keep Seaside, and pick up additional population from Fort Ord. Supervisor Warren Church would become the third coastal supervisor, giving up his present population in the northern part of Salinas in exchange for part of Fort Ord.

The Salinas area would be split between two districts. Board chairman Arthur Atteridge would keep the bulk of Salinas and extend his district through Toro Park, San Benancio and Corral de Tierra.

Finally, the vast third district to the south, which needs to pick up a substiantial chunk of population to bring it up to par, would include some 18,000 voters in the Alisal area of east Salinas.

The new plan is the least gerrymandered of any proposal given serious consideration, and resolves many of the objections raised to an earlier plan submitted by Church. That proposal split Salinas into three districts, divided Monterey more evenly between Branson and Smith, put the Corral de Tierra-Toro Park area into Smith's district and brought the third district up into Fort Ord to pick up additional population.

The plan will be given a preview Friday by mayors on the Monterey Peninsula.

Huge countersuit filed in airport controversy

BY PAT GRIFFITH

The Carmel Valley Committee for Peace and Quiet fired back at the airport owners Peter and Mary Delfino and unofficial operators Al and Connie Hood last week with a lawsuit asking for a permanent injunction against the airport as it is now operated and a total of $1,055,00 in damages.

In a separate action, key members of the committee named in a $1,200,000 suit filed by the Hoods last month, asked the court to quash that suit on the grounds the Hoods have not posted a $500 bond required in libel and slander actions.

A hearing on this motion is scheduled July 16 at 10 a.m. in Salinas.

The P&Q complaint filed by Attorney Sean Flavin makes three pleas:

1. For a declaration that the present use of the Carmel Valley airport violated the County Zoning Ordinance, and for a permanent injunction against continued "violation".

2. For a declaration that the Hoods' hangar and office, located on residentially-zoned property, violates the County Zoning Ordinance, and for a permanent injunction against their use.

3. For a total of $,1055,000 in damages, including $480,000 in general damages, $225,000 for damages for the loss of the use of private property, and $350,000 in punitive damages.

The plaintiffs on the suit are listed at the Carmel Valley Committee for Peace and Quiet, I.C. Howard, George Lockwood, Marcia Lockwood, John Dowdakin, Oscar Durham, Dorothy Durham, Robert J. Read, Louis Gardiner, Margaret Gardiner, John Sigourney, Nitko Nedeff, Nizza Nedeff, Allen Nadler, Ira R. Nadler, William H. Gorham, Linda Gorham, Frank C. Bresk, Frieda, H. Bresk, Mary Baugh, Elizabeth Granoff, M.R. Blevens, Barbara Blevens, Anders Larsen and Amy Farley Larsen.

The first two causes of action are aimed at overturning the recent ruling of the Board of Supervisors that the airport does have a legal non-conforming use and that the hangar and office are legal auxiliary uses to residential property.

In asking for damages, the plaintiffs charge that the airstrip "constitutes a continuing nuisance" and is responsible for "noise, vibrations, risks of injury and damage" that have caused the plaintiffs "loss of sleep, fatigue, interfered with their normal occupational obligations and social and recreational pursuits . . ."

The damage action also charges that the airport is in an "unsuitable" location because of topography, wind conditions, surrounding development and the proximity of Tularcitos School.

OTHER CHARGES

"The airstrip is improperly operated and maintained in that student and night flying are permitted," the suit states, "and the facility does not comply with Federal Aviation Administration safety standards and causes an unreasonable risk of injury to persons and damage to property in the vicinity."

The Lockwoods are named as "subject to a special risk of injury and their property damage because their property is situated in the clear zone prescribed by the Federal Aviation Administration for such airstrips."

In asking the court to overrule the County supervisors, the suit repeats charges aired at several public hearings that improvements made to the airport last year were in violation of its status as a non-conforming use.

The suit claims that the airport was improved by extending the surfaced runway from 1800 to 2500 feet; grading and surfacing the runway and taxiways; construction of the hangar and "a small administration and terminal building" within the hangar; and installation of tie-down facilities, a two-way radio and public telephone and a reflector system for night landings.

It further charges the defendants with increasing the use of the airport by charging landing and tie-down fees with a system of merchant rebates; operating charter, air taxi and sightseeing services; the commercial sale of aircraft fuel; regular attendance and supervision of the airport and advertising and promotion of its services and facilities.

For all these reasons, the suit says, the airport has undergone "an unlawful enlargement and increase" in its use.

"Such unlawful use of the airstrip is an illegal infringement on the property rights of the plaintiffs and is not a reasonable or necessary operation," the suit argues.

It further notes that the plaintiffs have exhausted all available avenues of appeal to the Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors, which "have failed and refused to enforce the (zoning) ordinance in accordance with its terms."

The legal escalation in the bitter controversy over the airport began in May, when the Hoods filed a damage suit against the P&Q committee and several key members, charging they have misled the public in a printed "fact sheet" and have conspired to ruin the Hoods' personal and business reputation.

Flavin, who has argued the P&Q case before the Planning Commission and supervisors, is one of three attorneys handling the defense of P&Q members named in the Hoods' suit.

EMERGENCY CALLS

It was a cool Fourth of July weekend for the Carmel Valley Fire Department. There were no fires reported—just a couple of calls about fireworks being used at Camp Steffani.

There were two calls for medical assistance over the holiday weekend. On Saturday at 9:11 p.m., Esther Smith, a guest at the Carmel Valley Inn, was taken to Community Hsopital as a medical emergency.

Monday the first aid crew reported to the scene of a motorcycle accident near the Marble ranch on Carmel Valley Road. Philip Gregg of Seaside and Wendy Walker of Oakland were treated at the scene, but declined transportation to a doctor.

Yesterday one of Carmel Valley's top young swimmers, Gerri Brandley, was hurt on her 13th birthday when she was thrown from a horse. She suffered cuts and bruises, but did not require hospitalization.

UNDER THE OAKS & AMONG THE CACTI

By Mildred Hattan

JIM RYAN third baseman for the Tiger Team of the Carmel Valley Little League Majors, was presented the McKenzie Sportsmanship award on Saturday by Scott McKenzie of Loveland, Colo. Scott is the son of the late Don McKenzie who over the years was one of the League's most dedicated supporters. It was at the end of last year's ball season that Mrs. Jean McKenzie offered the first trophy in memory of Don with Jim Giordano selected as the boy most deserving of the honor by all of the boys registered in the League. Jim, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Ryan of Berwick Drive, initially played Little League baseball in Eugene, Ore. Last year, Jim was a member of the Farm team, "The Cubs" and this year was tapped by Roger Sherman and Bill Conlan to play the season on the Tiger team.

Candidates introduced from the other teams were Larry Ocampo, Volunteers; Bill Neidinger, Indians; Rick Palmer, Lions; Robert Cresswell, Cougars; Eric Collas, Pirates; Dario Crippen, Hornets; Larry Cummings Jr., Wolf Pack; and Steve Forzani, Cubs.

Green and gold year pins were presented to each boy who had completed a year as a member of one of the four Major teams.

Winners of the Farm Team pennant for the season was announced as the HORNET'S team coached and managed by David Redman and Dean Brown. Trophies were presented to both the team's coach and to their sponsor, Bank of America (Village and Mid-Valley Branch.) It was a sensational season for the Hornets who lost only one game during the first half of the season and chalked up a SEVEN WIN - NO LOSS record for the second half. Players on the HORNETS team (referred to as "horrendous" by the other four Farm teams!) include Tommy John Bordonaro, Sam Davidson, Steve Draper, Cris Fosso, Ron Gayman, Charles Harlander, Sean George, Garth Hattan, Jonathan Hipp, Roy Kaminske, Steve Middleton, Tim Nielsen, Barry Powell, David Sternberg and Vince Sturgill.

Late afternoon came the announcement of the ALL STARS Teams. Augie Acuna, Lions manager, was announced as manager of the All Stars and Bob Sinclair, manager of the Indians as their coach. Boys named were Greg Miller, Jeff Canadas, Rick Palmer, Bill Collihan, (Lions) Steve Sherman, Tom Frinke, John Frinke, Steve Gere, (Tigers), Larry Ocampo, Steve Seberske, Scott Sweiss (Volunteers) Bill Neidinger, Laurent Longfellow and Greg Thigpen, (Indians) The Peninsula All Star Games will be held for the first time this year at the Valley Field - July 21, 22, 23, 24. The OUTLOOK will carry schedules in a later issue.

"GETTING TO KNOW YOU" would have been appropriate back ground music for the guests who were invited from five to seven for cocktails by Susie and Vic Harber. The Harbers planned the party as an opportunity for neighbors who reside on Lilac Lane to meet. Attending the Lilac Lane get-to-gether were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Huebner, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ijams, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ray Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Maurey Nessel, Mrs. Katherine Sholink, Mrs. Gerry Clark and Mrs.Margaret Moore.

FOUR OF THE CELEBRATED Beardsley children have taken up residency on Miramonte at the Richard King home. Charles (Rusty), Gregory, Rosemary and Louise Beardsley are all associated with the family's doughnut shop. The Kings, Mary Kaye, Dick, Chris, Andy and Matthew are still enjoying their exciting life in Singapore. Friends received word from the Valleyites that last week Dick would be making a ten day business trip to Israel for Litton, Inc., with stops in Bethlehem, Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

BLOSSOMS OF QUEEN ANNE'S LACE, Marguerite's and Star Jasmine made up the miniature old fashioned bridal nosegays centering the tables at the Trail and Saddle Clubhouse where the June benefit bridge and canasta party was given by the ladies of St. Dunstan's. Kathryn Walker was hostess for the party assisted by Francis Anthony, Joan Morris and Ruth Compass. Bridal white set the theme from the striking mantle arrangement of Matillja poppies and fever fewe to the Bride's imprinted on cloths and napkins.

The "long nape" trend
with a unique flair.

WHEN WARREN NEU, president, Wilfred Nubin, vice president, Larry Baley, social vice president, and Roy Scheiter, athletic vice president combined efforts for a summer celebration for fellow employees and families from the Comsat Jamesburg Earth Sation, the results were sensational . . . so agreed the 48 adults and 38 children who enjoyed the station's fourth annual picnic.

San Benito County was the site this year for the gang from the Cachagua who took advantage of the facilities at Bolado Park. Swimming, golf, organized games, relaxing on the spacious rolling lawns and FOOD . . . steaks and hot dogs prepared by chef-of-the-day, Albert Eleshio complimented by the delicious potluck dishes contributed by the ladies of COMSAT.

Door prizes were awarded to Jim Clark (an onyx desk set), and Bill Scott, Bob French and Al Eleshio who won tickets for the CV Little League drawing.

TIGERS WIN 1971 MAJOR LEAGUE SERIES

The temporary madness which befalls any ball team and its fans upon winning a pennant at the season's end was witnessed Tuesday night at the Carmel Valley Little League Field when the Tigers (winners of the second half of the Major League series) trounced the Indians (first half winners) with a 6-0 victory in the play-off game.

Tiger Tom Frincke pitched the 6-0 shut-out -- his second of the season. From the first strains of the Star Spangled Banner to the final "out", the Tigers had the game right in their paws . . . 'er mitt! Morgan Ward's hit was credited with the first RBI. Indian scalps dangled from the belts of the entire team who made only one Tiger error.

"The Year of the Tiger" with the pennant . . . the McKenzie award for team mate Jim Ryan . . . four players named to the All Stars -- was not without pitfalls. Steve Sherman was benched for several weeks early in the season with a serious knee injury . . . Shane Hattan broke his leg . . . and Don Clark who joined the Bench Brigade with a broken collar bone. ALL of the Tigers were on the field Tuesday night when Manager Bill Conlan and coach, Roger Sherman accepted the championship trophy. Other players sponsored by Nick Lombardo's Rancho Canada Golf Course were: Vince Cal, Peter Deoudes, John Frincke, Steven Gere, Rogan Hattan, Geoffrey Lee and Tim Sherman . . . CHAMPIONS -- EVERY ONE!

Tiger Tom Frincke pitched the 6-0 shut-out -- his second of the season. From the first strains of the Star Spangled Banner to the final "out", the Tigers had the game right in their paws . . . 'er mitt! Morgan Ward's hit was credited with the first RBI. Indian scalps dangled from the belts of the entire team who made only one Tiger error.

"The Year of the Tiger" with the pennant . . . the McKenzie award for team mate Jim Ryan . . . four players named to the All Stars -- was not without pitfalls. Steve Sherman was benched for several weeks early in the season with a serious knee injury . . . Shane Hattan broke his leg . . . and Don Clark who joined the Bench Brigade with a broken collar bone. ALL of the Tigers were on the field Tuesday night when Manager Bill Conlan and coach, Roger Sherman accepted the championship trophy. Other players sponsored by Nick Lombardo's Rancho Canada Golf Course were: Vince Cal, Peter Deoudes, John Frincke, Steven Gere, Rogan Hattan, Geoffrey Lee and Tim Sherman . . . CHAMPIONS -- EVERY ONE!

Corps of Engineers report underscores need for flood plain zoning

"Flood waters swirled into a score of houses near the mouth of the storm-fed Carmel River today, forcing some residents to evacuate. Waters began subsiding shortly before noon after the mouth of the river was opened by a bulldozer, but the danger of more flooding remained because of an incoming tide and more showers expected tonight.

Damage already is estimated in the thousands of dollars.

"The river was fed by the overflowing San Clemente and Los Padres dams which were filled by the heavy rain storm...Depth of the rapidly moving water at the Carmel River bridge reached 15 feet at 11 a.m., stopping after the mouth was opened. The river had risen at the rate of one foot per hour. Flood level at the bridge is 24 feet. The river bed at this area was dry yesterday.

"Carmel Bay was filled with debris and stained brown by the onrushing river water.

"There was six inches of water in every room at the home of Leonard Heller at 16th and Camino Real. Throughout the John P. Kunstle home...there was two feet of water.

"The water swept over the playgrounds at the Carmel River School.

"Residents in that area placed sandbags around their homes, many of which were isolated by the water which flooded the streets."

---Monterey Herald, Feb. 10, 1962

That was just a minor flood on the Carmel River, a flash that came quickly and subsided almost as fast.

It was nothing when compared to April, 1958, when a major flood inundated homes and washed away property to the extent of $300,000 in damages. That year 1000 people were evacuated from property on or near the Carmel River.

According to the Army Corps of Engineers, the 1958 flood ranks as a "20-year" flood, meaning that a flood of that severity could be expected to occur about five times in a 100-year period.

This does not mean, however, that a flood of that magnitude occurs in 20-year cycles. Records show that flood years often occur in bunches.

The Corps of Engineers says that major flood have occured on the Carmel River in 1862, 1911, 1914, 1938, 1945, 1955, 1958, 1962 and 1969.

The greatest documented flood was in March, 1911, during which, according to witnesses, "just about everything in Carmel Valley washed out."

This flood was estimated to be a 100-year flood -- a flood of such severity that it would happen only once during this century. Yet, according to the Corps of Engineers, "another flood almost as severe occurred in 1914. Thus, two statistically improbable events occurred back-to-back, so to speak, within a time interval of only three years."

SO WHAT'S NEW?

Much has changed since 1914.

San Clemente Dam was built in 1921, and although it is intended solely for water storage and not flood control, it probably did lessen the impact of the six major floods that have washed through the Valley since it was completed.

The character of the Valley has changed drastically since 1914.

Gone are the ranches and farms that once covered the Valley floor, replaced by shopping centers, suburban developments and high-density communities such as Hacienda Carmel.

The lush hillsides are dotted with homes, and water that once was absorbed into the ground now runs off carports and patios and roof tops, then streams down asphalt ribbons until it reaches the river.

Even the trees and dense underbrush which once lined the river are thinned out and, in some places, gone, taking with them the natural barriers to erosion of the riverbanks.

What was once a beautiful, undeveloped Valley susceptible to flooding is now a beautiful, well-populated Valley even more susceptible to flooding.

And almost nobody wants to do anything about it.

For several months now, at an assortment of hearings before the Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors, there have been repeated reminders about the very real problem of floods.

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, among others, has asked the County to establish flood-plain zoning along the Carmel River. A flood plain ordinance is already on the books.

Flood Plain 1 is an area which is a primary flood area, namely the bottom of the riverbed.

Flood Plain 2 is the area likely to be flooded by a stream overflowing its banks.

Flood Plain 3 may lie within either of the above areas, but is property that is protected by dikes or similar means.

The purpose of establishing flood plain zoning would be two-fold:

First, it would limit new development in areas immediately adjacent to the Carmel River. This would be to the County's benefit, since the County must pay to bail out flooded homeowners, repair roads, etc.

Second, it would enable persons who now own property along the river to apply for federally-financed flood insurance. This reasonably-priced insurance is available only to persons living in areas that have officially been labeled flood plains. Application for this insurance must be made before December 31, which means the Board of Supervisors would have to approve flood plain zoning before then.

OFFICIAL VIEWPOINT

At the moment, it is doubtful that this will happen.

"There is obviously a need for flood plain zoning," Planning Director Ed DeMars said last week, "but there has never been any outcry for it.

"Attempts have been made on two occasions, and they never got off the ground."

DeMars said it has been the experience of the Planning Department that "the only time people get excited is when water comes in the front door and out the back.

"We continue to be very interested in doing something about this, and quite frustrated because no one in the Valley seems very enthusiastic."

Supervisor Willard Branson has had much the same experience. Last year he introduced a Carmel River Ordinance, which had as its primary purpose the preservation of existing riverbanks and the prevention of pollution caused by dumping or just plain carelessness.

This ordinance was scuttled by residents living along the river, who said it would hamper their individual efforts to fight erosion and would be just one more law to harrass the property owner.

In recent months, Branson has received a few letters from individuals asking for the establishment of flood plain zoning. In addition to the CVPOA and the Carmel Area Coalition, he has heard from two river dwellers, Ed Lee and William Brown, and a few others "who live on high ground."

Still, according to Branson, there has been no sign of a "concerted effort" in this direction, and he suspects that most people want to wait for the new Corps of Engineers report on the river before any action is taken.

WHAT THE ENGINEERS THINK

The Corps of Engineers is presently engaged in still another study of the Carmel River. What its recommendations will be remain to be seen.

But it is hard to see how the Corps can do anything but restate and re-emphasize many of the points it raised in its May, 1967, study entitled "Flood Plain Information -- Carmel River."

The very blunt language in that report was aimed at the Monterey County government and the residents of Carmel Valley. And according to DeMars, the planning staff agrees with the report right down the line.

Among other things, the report says:

"The interest of the County of Monterey is to protect the public health and safety, and to reduce the financial burden imposed on the entire community in event of a flood disaster in certain areas. This can be done by implementing flood plain zoning regulations to discourage developments that might be damaged by floodflows. Monterey County has no comprehensive flood plain zoning in effect at the present time (1967), and many examples of improvements, the location of which show impudent disregard of nature's capriciousness, are in evidence."

The report says this about developments along the Carmel River:

"The Carmel River Valley has been experiencing rapid residential, retirement community and commercial development, parallel to the growth rate experienced by the State of California in recent years. Extensive areas of recently constructed residential and retirement community subdivisions, as well as some important public utilities, are subject to periodic flooding.

"Other developments now in the advanced design or construction phase will be located on the flood plain. In the past, most of the land in Carmel Valley was utilized for moderate to highly productive agricultural uses. Flood damages were limited to relatively infrequent crop losses.

"However, with urban development, monetary losses to individuals, businesses and public property from flood overflow and poor drainage have greatly increased. With further development successive flood plain losses will multiply.

"Since the greater portion of the Carmel River flood plain has not yet been developed, steps should be taken toward zoning or construction of flood-control works to prevent proliferation of damages from future floods that may be expected to occur."

FLOODING IN THE Mission Fields subdivision just outside the Carmel city limits, April 1958.

As for flooding and the Carmel Sewage Treatment Plant, the report observes:

"The sewage treatment plant for the City of Carmel is located on the flood plain at an elevation prone to relatively frequent flooding. Past floods have interfered with proper operation, and though damages were mostly of a maintenance nuisance nature, the flood situation could cause serious health hazards in the Carmel River Beach State Park, located downstream at the mouth of the river.

"Though the location of the installation is deemed compatible with rational use of flood plain land, the present flood situation represents a severe deterrent to possible future developments downstream, due to the health hazards in times of even minor flooding.".. It contains this warning about future floods:

"A repetition of the flood of April 1958 would interrupt traffic, create a threat to public health and cause mass evacuation of people and chattel property from homes built in low areas.

"While the area inundated would be similar, the resultant damages would be greater today, due to the increase in the number of dwellings within the flood plain."

Finally, this is what the Corps of Engineers hoped to accomplish with their 1967 report:

"Attention is directed to the fact that neither does the scope of the investigation nor the extent of this report include plans for flood protective works, or for the direct solution of flood problems created by the Carmel River.

"Rather, it is intended to provide herewith the bases for further study and planning on the part of local interests in arriving at solutions to minimize vulnerability to flood damages. Such study and planning in most cases will involve local programs to guide property developments by controlling the type of use made of the flood plain properties through zoning and subdivision regulations, and any actual construction of such improvements of or flood protection works themselves should be performed only after a careful engineering study with permit process, or a combination of these two approaches as might be in order."

So that's where things stood in 1968, one year before the overflowing Carmel River washed out two expensive chunks of Carmel Valley Road and almost toppled Robinson Canyon Bridge.

That was nowhere near a 20-year flood.

And Carmel Valley residents, for the most part, remain apathetic or firmly opposed to the type of planning recommended by the Corps of Engineers -- "local programs to guide property developments by controllong the type of use made of the flood plain properties through zoning and subdivision regulations..."

THE CARMEL RIVER is a sometimes thing, as any Valley resident can testify. At left is how it looks about now—lots of rocks and sand, but only a few puddles of water. Six months from now it may well be a fast-flowing torrent, cutting away at unprotected banks and washing over nearby property, as it was in the picture above.

By PAT GRIFFITH

If Carmel Valley residents really want flood plain zoning, they can have it for the asking. But if they want flood plain zoning just so they can then qualify for federal flood insurance, that's a different story.

This was the essence of what County Counsel William Stoffers told the Board of Supervisors Tuesday when the subject of flood plain zoning came up in a letter from the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

The CVPOA has repeatedly urged the supervisors to establish flood plain zoning along the Carmel River. In its latest letter, the CVPOA said this was a matter of some urgency because of federal flood insurance.

It has been the understanding of CVPOA board members that the federal program will be available to homeowners only until the end of this year, and that in order to qualify for this insurance, the individual must live on land that has been zoned as a flood plain by the county.

Stoffers said that as he understood the legislation, there can be no application for flood insurance unless it is done on a county-wide basis.

He said this would entail a petition requesting a flood plain study from persons living all over the county. Then the county would have to send our engineers to survey likely flood areas and report back to the supervisors, who could, at that point, declare such areas to be part of a flood plain zone. Then people could apply for the federally-backed insurance.

However, Stoffers told the Outlook, if people in Carmel Valley want to have the existing flood plain zoning ordinance applied just because it seems like a sensible thing to do, that can happen relatively quickly.

All that would take, he said, is some indication of broad support from Valley residents—i.e. a petition to the Board of Supervisors.

He said that the results of the CVPOA questionnaire, showing 49 percent of 373 persons responding in favor of a flood control district for the Valley, does not really qualify as an expression of support for flood plain zoning.

The supervisors directed chairman Arthur Atteridge to write a letter to the CVPOA explaining all this. Stoffers said he doesn't plan to pursue the matter further.

Directional signs approved for Carmel Rancho Center

The Carmel Rancho Shopping Center won approval from the Board of Supervisors Tuesday to put up two directional signs on the center's property, facing Carmel Rancho Blvd.

The board's ruling overturned the decision of the Planning Commission, which had denied a zoning permit for the signs.

The supervisors attached several conditions to the permit. The signs will be limited to no more than 35 square feet each, and may list only the category of service offered in the center, such as "hardware store" or "restaurant", but not the name of individual businesses.

The signs will face Carmel Rancho Blvd. so that motorists entering the shopping center will know what is available on either side of the road. The signs must be set at least 210 feet south of the intersection with Carmel Valley Road, and will not be seen from Carmel Valley Road.

The supervisors also decided that while it is all right for the signs to say "Carmel Rancho Shopping Center", the words "Welcome to" above that are unacceptable.

Two other applications for signs along Carmel Valley Road were turned down by the Planning Commission last week.

Commissioners first turned down a request by the Hatch Cover Restaurant in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center for a sign at the back of the building, facing Carmel Valley Road.

Attorney Brian Finegan, representing the restaurant, said the sign was necessary because the commission had earlier denied an overall sign for the shopping center itself.

"I think if this is allowed, we'll just be flooded with applications from every business in that area," commented commissioner Keith Evans.

Evans said he thought the commission had erred in giving permission for other signs along Carmel Valley Road, and said that "the fewer signs we have visible from that road the better off we are."

On a similar application, the commission directed the Adobe Oaks motel in the Village to remove credit card signs which had been attached to the motel's main sign on Carmel Valley Road.

A month ago Blanquita's Restaurant, one business removed from the motel, was also ordered to take down credit card signs that had been put up without a permit.

County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon said the ruling was in line with "a continuing policy against allowing credit card signs in the Village."

It's big time Rodeo week in Salinas

The "Big Hat" barbecue attended Wednesday night by more than 2,000 rodeo fans at the Monterey County Sheriff's Possee grounds marked the start of the annual "Big Week" activities in Salinas.

From now until the opening of the California Rodeo, July 15 through 18, there will be a continuous round of Western activities as the county capital prepares for the 60th annual cowboy classic.

Thursday was Western dress day all over Salinas and Friday sees the opening of the Foley and Burk carnival and sidewalk sales by the merchants which will continue through Saturday.

Rodeo week will start off with Western entertainment in the shopping centers and industrial plants on Monday and Tuesday.

The Kiddie Kapers, in which some 3,000 children from all parts of the county participate, will be Wednesday night and, on Thursday the four-day rodeo will get underway.

EILEEN DUFUR

A distinguished Carmel Valley photographer

By PAT GRIFFITH

Some women go into a state of emotional collapse when their last child leaves home for good. Others never have time to fall apart—they're too busy pursuing all the special interests they put aside during years of tending children.

Such was the case with Eileen Dufur, who seized upon her new-found lesiure a few years ago to embark on a new and challenging pasttime—photography.

"I was at the point where I really needed something to do all my own," she recalls.

So she started out with the basics, learning how to handle a camera under the tutelage of one of Carmel's premier photographers, Al Weber.

After two years studying with Weber, she spent a semester with Geraldine Sharp and took a workshop with Ansel Adams at Monterey Peninsula College.

This formal instruction and expert guidance polished raw enthusiasm into a fine, creative talent that has won her the respect of her colleagues as well as prizes in numerous exhibits.

Several of Mrs. Dufur's photographs are on display in the "Thirty-nine California Photographers" exhibit at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove.

This show is sponsored by the Eikon Gallery of Monterey and the Pacific Grove Art Center, and will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Sunday.

Following the show, some of her photographs will be available at the Eikon Gallery, and anyone going to the Monterey County Fair will undoubtedly see more of her work displayed then.

Now living in a pleasant home on Lower Circle in Robles del Rio, (where she has to use the bathroom for her darkroom), she has lived in this area almost all her life.

As a child she lived in Carmel "when it was nothing but a little Village, and you could walk home from a show at 11 or 12 at night and nobody worried about anything."

She has fond memories of mussel feeds behind the old Bayview School, a stretch of deserted beach that also produced large red abalones.

"You didn't have to fight the tourists at all," she sighs.

And just about now, every year, she and her friends used to ride from Carmel to Salinas for the rodeo parades—by horseback all the way.

"Certainly we expected Carmel to grow some," she says, "but never, never to catch on the way it has...It's still charming, of course, but all those people..."

She is quick to add that Carmel Valley has also changed since the long-gone days when she and her family drove out the twisting, narrow, rutted Carmel Valley Road to swim in idyllic bliss at Camp Steffani.

It was during all these years that she, and later her daughters, came to know the old-time "real" artists of Carmel.

Long-time readers of the Outlook will remember many stunning photographs of Mrs. Dufur's which have appeared in the past. These photographs, we feel, represent a cross-section of some of her finest work.

Val Verde development gets apparent green light

Final vote Wednesday at 4:00

Casas de Carmel, a development of 45 two-bedroom homes on Val Verde Drive at Carmel Valley Road, received all but the final stamp of approval last week from the Monterey County Planning Commission.

Commissioners indicated informal acceptance of the tentative subdivision map, but put off a final vote until July 14 in order to give the planning staff time to work out some of the fine details with developer Thomas Gamboa.

The tentative subdivision map submitted in Salinas by attorney George Walker was virtually identical in layout to the preliminary map which drew vehement opposition from the commission last month. The only difference was the addition of more off-street parking spaces.

This time, however, the map was accompanied by architects' renderings of the full development showing designs for three roof styles, scores of full-grown trees and extensive landscaping along Carmel Valley Road and Val Verde Drive.

To the obvious surprise of the planning staff, the new map also described the property as 8.1 acres -- not the 7.5 acres which the Board of Supervisors had rezoned to a density of six units per acre.

This prompted a flurry of numbers, with Walker saying the 45-unit development was under its density limit with 5.5 units per acre, while Planning Director Ed De Mars contended it "has always been everyone's assumption that the property is 7.5 acres," which would put the plan at the maximum six units per acre.

The discrepancy in the presumed size of the property was discovered when it was surveyed by engineer Clayton Neill, who confirmed to the commission yesterday that the parcel is 8.1 acres.

This problem was finally set aside with the commission agreeing that the development would not go above 45 units, whatever the precise acreage.

"RURAL EMPHASIS"

Architect Omer Baltan of Redwood City told commissioners that the concept behind the development is to "maintain a rural emphasis and suburban quality." This will be achieved, he said, by having low shake roofs and stucco exteriors.

The curving interior road provides an "interesting layout, Baltan said, "so you're always having a surprise as you walk along."

Finally he said, the plan is designed to "create a park-like setting, a country club atmosphere." This will be brought about by planting "large specimen trees" at the beginning.

Baltan said the proposed layout will have 23 percent of the land covered with buildings, including a recreation building in the center; 17 percent will go to roads and paving, 4.6 percent to patios and walks and 55.4 percent for open space and landscaping.

Potential traffic congestion and the problems of making U-turns at the lower end of Carmel Valley Road, which prompted great concern last month, were raised again by several persons in the audience.

Joe Broadman, whose property on Val Verde is south of the proposed development, asked that a solution to the traffic problem be found before the use permit is approved.

"Remember you're going uphill (from Val Verde Dr.) to get on a freeway," he said. He warned that cars "will come through there in herds . . . 20 or 23 cars at a time gaining speed as they go by Val Verde" after a signal is installed at the intersection of Carmel Knolls Drive and Carmel Rancho Blvd.

Broadman said that now is the time for the road department to come up with a solution because future developments, at six units per acre, can be expected along Val Verde.

Another Val Verde resident, Cole Weston, argued that approval of the tentative map "without a proper entrance is insanity . . . Two hundred cars will never make it. There will be carnage on the highway."

Commission chairman Edward P. Marcucci concurred that "an alternate access is desireable."

BLAMES CARMEL VALLEY ROAD

Commissioner Vaughn Parsons, who had been sharply critical of the preliminary map, said that the problem lies not with new developments, but "with a bad Carmel Valley Road." (At that point, Carmel Valley Road has a planted center divider strip, with two lanes of traffic on either side.)

"The ultimate answer here is going to have to be an exit when Riverwood is completed on Rio Road," he said.

In the meantime, Parsons contended, Val Verde is "no better or worse than most roads coming out onto Carmel Valley Road. I think you have adequate time to come out onto Carmel Valley Road and get in a third lane and make a U-turn."

Noting that the development plans call for 55 percent open space, Parsons continued: "I'm more impressed with this development . . . Unless you want to nit-pik, I really don't find anything objectionable. I think the amenities have been more than adequately provided for. I don't see any reason to delay this further."

Representing the Carmel Area Coalition, Victoria Gibson said the new plan "is still crowded and congested," and questioned whether or not Gamboa should be allowed to build a large recreation building in addition to the allowable density.

"Common sense would seem to indicate that you can't fill up open space with accessory buildings," she said.

Although the commission did not answer her question directly, DeMars said later that accessory buildings are permitted in addition to the prescribed density per acre, provided that the additional buildings are not to be lived in.

Other concerns expressed last month were answered by Walker, who said that the development will be hooked up to the Carmel Sanitary District, that drainage water will be channeled through a culvert in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center to the Carmel River, that parking provisions exceed what is required by zoning ordinances, and that easements are provided for hiking and riding trails.

Walker said that there will be a homeowners association which will make sure the property is well maintained and that boats and other recreational gear is kept out of sight. Each unit will have a two-car enclosed garage, part of which could be used for storage.

After hearing the full presentation, commissioner Keith Evans said "I feel the problems have been generally solved. We do have a grave problem of access from Val Verde to Carmel Valley Road . . . (but) I don't believe we can hold it up because presently there is a poor and difficult access."

Over Walker's objections, the matter was then continued to July 14, in order to clarify the width of the interior roads and parking areas. Parsons voted against the continuance.

'Man of La Mancha' enjoying hit run at Circle Theatre

"It is the most successful show we've had in our 11 year history, barring none," Michael Keller said of the Community Theater of the Monterey Peninsula's Circle Theatre production of "Man of La Mancha."

The present run of the musical opened July 18th and each of the 11 performances so far have been a sellout, which was the case with all 20 performances of the play given at the Circle last February and March.

With a seating capacity of 150, it means that about 4,500 persons have seen the play in the Carmel theatre. Or, at least, it would mean that if so many people were not coming back again and again for more.

"They don't fail to tell us, either," says Keller, who directed "Man of La Mancha," "Some come back and it's the second time, the fourth time. I think the record is five."

Because of the enthusiasm with which the musical has been received, last week the theatre, which had been presenting the play just Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, added Wednesday and Thursday performances.

Discussing the February and March run, Keller said "never in our lives had we spent so much money for royalties and costumes, but it proved to be the biggest success we have ever had."

Although the run drew an attendance of 3,000 to the performances, Keller thinks the summer run will surpass that figure with the added Wednesday and Thursday performances.

While "Man of La Mancha" itself must be given much credit for the success of the run, Keller thinks that "even more than the play I think it is the dedication of our actors. I have rarely seen a company of actors working so damn hard on a show. They're the most wonderful people I've ever met."

Keller said the rapport "between the actors and the audience is a fascinating thing to watch.

"To watch what happens between the actors and the audience, in the confines of that small arena, it's a terrific thing.

"Another phenomenon that is occurring that is most rare in our theatre is the people rising in a standing ovation. They come up en masse as a group." And there's no prompting, he adds.

"We are trying desperately to bring the best possible theatre we can to the community, that is for sure."

Keller reported that the show is again selling out in advance for Friday and Saturday performances. The final night is July 24.

Reservations can be made by calling the theatre's 24-hour answering service at 624-2669.

'Fiddler on the Roof' to be staged in Salinas

"Fiddler on the Roof," the seventh annual summer musical production of Salinas Performing Arts, will be presented July 16, 23, 24, 30 and 31. Performances will be at the Salinas High Auditorium, on South Main Street, with curtain time at 8:30 p.m.

A cast of over 30 singers and dancers will perform in "Fiddler," to the accompaniment of a full orchestra. Dr. Jeffrey Braff will produce the show, which will be directed by Joseph Yedlicka. Musical Director will be Gary Horseley; Choreographer, Maureen Sullivan; Costumer, Pat Fowler and head of the Make-up Crew will be Linda Cooper. Sets for the show, which involves seventeen scene changes, were designed by Director Yedlicka and constructed under his direction.

Mike Rega and Marcie Schumacher will star as Tevye, the dairyman, and his wife Golde. Their five unmarried daughters will be portrayed by Carol Ann Hughes, Gail Macgowan, Susan Johnson, Liz Eldredge and Karen Royal. Featured as three of their suitors will be Tony Hernandez, Terry Smith and Mark Greenlaw.

"Fiddler on the Roof," with book by Joseph Stein, music by Jerry Bock and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick, is based on well loved stories by Sholom Aleichem. The Tevye stories were first dramatized by Arnold Perl as "The World of Sholom Aleichem," and later as "Tevye and His Daughters," before presentation in musical form. Set in the Russia of 1905, its themes of crumbling traditions, parents deploring the rebelliousness of their children, and a minority's oppression, have never been more relevant.

Salinas Performing Arts President, Dr. James Hicks, urges Carmel Valley residents to attend this, the first community theatre production of "Fiddler onthe Roof" in the area. Internationally acclaimed for its productions in over 21 countries, "Fiddler" also received the coveted New York Drama Critics Circle award and nine "Tony awards following its premiere in September 1964. Tickets will be available at the door on the evenings of performances, and at Gadsby's Music Company in Salinas.

Forest Theater summer programs now underway

BY FRANK H. RILEY, MANAGER SUNSET CENTER

Sunday, the Fourth, saw the first of the 1971 summer programs at Forest Theater. Featured were the splendid chorus of the Monterey Chapter SPEBSQSA, directed by Neil Keefer, plus two great quartets, the Stablemates from Salinas and the Fancy Dans from San Diego. The program was varied, spirited, and well received by a comparatively small but enthusiastically appreciative audience. For those who like statistics, our box score for the day shows attendance of 167 persons, plus 27 performers and 3 staff, for a total of 197 -- about four percent of the City's population.

This Sunday, the 11th, Forest Theater will present James Shuck, pianist and John F. Morrice, violinist. These young men were winners in the M.P. Chamber Music Society competition. Much has been said of the influence Forest Theater has had on the careers of aspiring young artists. Here is an example of the continuing policy of providing exposure for young performers at Forest. The extent and the effectiveness of that exposure, of course, depends to a large degree upon how many of you attend and lend your encouragement.

See you Sunday?

Another first for the week -- opening rehearsals for the Bach Festival. Music and musicians, directors and stage hands, lighting experts and cookie dispensers all weave in and out, gradually working out a corrdinated unity of facilities, people, programs and staging, which all ends up as the magnificent 34th season of the Carmel Bach Festival. A 34-year tradition with a spirit as young as tomorrow.

We have been offered a rather spectacular series of shows including such attractions as an eastern European folk-dance ensemble, a youthful singing group, and even an ice show! Of course, such shows are pretty expensive to import, and so would necessitate an assured sale of season tickets or some other local guarantee to underwrite the expense. We hesitated to sign up, having reservations about the support we might receive. If you have comments, we surely would like to hear from you.

Don't forget that the "Civilisation" movie series begins at the NPG School this Sunday at 7 p.m. You can pick up your free tickets at the Sunset Office between 9 and 12 or 1 and 5 daily except Saturdays and Sundays.

Wednesdays the Patio Picnic Days continue. Bring your lunch and join us. We have the coffee.

Defending titlist to play in Trans-Miss golf tourney next week

Allen Miller III, of Pensacola, Florida, has joined the field of over 200 top-rated United States amateurs who will compete in the 68th Trans-Mississippi Gold Championship to be played at Pebble Beach July 12-18.

Miller, who is the Trans-Miss defending champion, was on both the 1969 and 1971 Walker Cup teams, the 1970 Eisenhower Trophy Team and participated in the 1970 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, also held at Pebble Beach.

John Farquhar of Amarillo, Texas, was a member of the 1971 Walker Cup Team, carded the lowest amateur score in the 1964 US Open, was 5th in the 1969 US Amateur and 11th in the 1970 US Amateur.

Competition will be over the championship Spyglass Hill golf course which is rated No. 1 in California.

Following two days of qualifying, match play will begin on Wednesday with competition among the low 64 scorers, while the next 32 will make up the President's flight.

Also coming to Pebble Beach is Ignacio de la Borbolla of Mexico who at the age of 15 was the 1966 Junior Golf Champion of Mexico.

The public is invited to gallery the matches at no charge.

Celebrities sparkle at festive Eastwood tournament

Photos by William C. Brooks

ENJOYING THE VIEW FROM THE SIDELINES, Jabby (Mrs. Dennis) Hess watches the action during the Eastwood Tennis Tournament with Merv Griffin. Mrs. Hess, the granddaughter of the late S.F.B. Morse, was one of the participants in the tournament. She and her daughter, Whitney, 1½, were houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Davidson of Los Ranchitos.

YOU'D NEVER KNOW IT from her smile, but Jan (Mrs. Ken) Gardner of Carmel Valley, left, had one of the toughest jobs during the Eastwood tournament. She was chairman of the highly successful Gala, which sold out in advance, leaving dozens of unhappy visitors trying to get tickets. Here she enjoys a respite at a cocktail party given by the Alfred Gawthrops with James "Lefty" Brown and Mrs. Edgar Bergen.

THE LAST PRE-SCHOOLERS have smeared finger paints and romped under the trees at the Playtime Nursery School in Robles del Rio. Owner Betty Antoncich, left, has decided to close the school after 18 years. With her is Doris Mark, who has directed the school for the past five years, with the assistance of Frieda Bresk. Photo by George T.C. Smith

Playtime nursery school is closing

The swinging gate which has led hundreds of Carmel Valley children to the Playtime Nursery School in Robles del Rio will be locked in September.

After 18 years and some 650 students, Betty Antoncich is closing the popular pre-school at her home on Upper Circle "because times have changed...and our Valley is getting to be more of an adult community, with fewer and fewer three-year-olds."

This will leave the Valley with just one full-fledged nursery school, the cooperative Carmel Valley Parent Nursery School at the Community Chapel.

"I am sorry, because it has been a marvelous experience," Mrs. Antoncich said Tuesday. "Every one of my kids came here, and later on it was a great place for them to learn to work with children. This school was right for its time, but now it seems as though it has served its purpose."

In fact, she noted, time has now come full circle, and many of her students from the early days are now parents themselves.

It is likely they would all agree with her that "few schools anywhere have such a nice physical setting." The cozy red frame building, completely scaled to childish dimensions, opens onto an enchanted garden, where tire swings dangle from mammoth oak limbs and birds and flowers abound.

Mrs. Antoncich was full of praise for Doris Mark, who has been part of the school for eight years and director for the past five.

"She's so outstanding...I've never seen a better nursery school. I frankly think she's too good to be kept here. She should go into something bigger. Students at Monterey Peninsula College have done practice teaching there as part of a course on early child development, and recently a training film was made at the school.

Right now Mrs. Antoncich is taking inventory of all the nursery school equipment—puzzles, books, furniture, art supplies, dolls, wheel toys and unopened boxes of cookies and crackers. She hopes to sell everything at one time to someone who would like to open a new nursery school.

When everything is cleared out, she plans to convert the small school building to a guest house.

Carmel Valley may require sewer system by 1975

If Carmel Valley continues growing at the present rate, it will require a sewer system by 1975.

This prediction, which carries with it the implication of a future legal requirement, is included in the Interim Water Quality Control Plan prepared by the Central Coastal Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The plan was approved last week by the State Water Resources Control Board in Sacramento, and was prepared to satisfy federal and state requirements for construction grants and water quality control.

It will serve as a guide for water quality management and for waste treatment plant construction in the next two years, until fully-developed basin and regional plans are completed.

Supervisor Willard Branson of Carmel Valley, who serves as chairman of the CCRWQCB, said the plan is not specific about sewage facilities for Carmel Valley.

"The language is broad, but it does anticipate the need for a sewage facility or collection system if the present rate of development continues," Branson said. "It is possible there could be a treatment plant located midway up the Valley."

Branson said that the first draft of this plan, prepared by State engineers, included several conditions for septic tanks "that would have amounted to condemnation of thousands of vacant hillside lots."

These provisions, eliminated at the insistence of the CCRWQCB, would have placed a total prohibition on septic tanks within 100 feet of a natural drainageway or on any slopes with an average grade of 25 percent. They would also have required a minimum of one acre for a new septic tank, regardless of the soil conditions.

Branson said the regional board felt these requirements were "not reasonable. The restrictions were almost prohibitive and took away local control.

"There was no definition of a 'natural drainageway' and the one-acre limitation was not flexible enough. It would mean someone with a half-acre of permeable soil couldn't build on it, while another person with an acre of solid granite could build."

Branson said all these provisions were amended to bring septic tank standards back to where they are now, under the existing restrictions of the County Health Department. Present regulations require a check of soil conditions before septic tanks are built on hillside lots, and specify the minimum land necessary for a drainfield.

"The new septic tanks being installed now work quite well," Branson said. "It is some of the old ones that have had failures."

The interim plan includes this statement in the Carmel-Point Pinos section:

"The Carmel Sanitary District will complete an expansion and conversion of its present treatment plant to a three million gallons per day activated sludge plant in early 1972. The current outfall into Carmel Bay will have to be replaced with another disposal method during the next five years to protect the waters of Carmel Bay."

The section continues:

"In addition to the treatment and disposal facilities already mentioned, this sub-basin will require the construction of sewage collection systems in several rapidly developing areas. The Laguna Seca-Hidden Hills area can be served by an extension to the present Monterey or Seaside systems, or by the system which will be built to serve Carmel Valley. Carmel Valley will require a sewer system before 1975 if present pace of development continues. Both of these projects are now scheduled for 1975."

July 28 Odello hearing to stay in Salinas

Dr. Edward Marcucci, chairman of the Monterey County Planning Commission, announced yesterday that the July 28 hearing on the proposed rezoning and development of the Odello property will be held in Salinas as scheduled.

Several individuals and groups have been attempting to get the public hearing moved to Carmel, in order to accommodate the large crowd that is expected to be present.

The following is Marcucci's statement:

"It has been suggested that the Odello hearing be heard in Sunset Auditorium to accommodate the expected large attendance. I discussed this proposal with other commissioners and Planning Director Ed DeMars, and it is the consensus that the availability of documents and plans, plus certain physical properties present in the supervisors' chambers, would make Sunset Auditorium impractical.

"The meeting will be held in Salinas as originally planned. Our sincere appreciation for the understanding of all concerned citizens in this matter."

Property Owners hear talk on insurance rates

John Barr, supervising engineer for the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, will be the guest speaker at tonight's (Thursday) general membership meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the meeting hall at Carmel Valley Manor. The public is invited.

Barr will speak on fire insurance and related issues of fire protection with relevance for all of Carmel Valley, not just residents in the mid-Valley.

Tomorrow (Friday) night's meeting called by Supervisor Willard Branson to discuss fire protection specifically for the mid-Valley has been shifted to Brey Hall at Carmel High School. This meeting will start at 7:30 p.m., and will be attended by various county officials and representatives from nearby fire districts.

Branson has urged all property owners living in the area between Rancho Fiesta Rd. on the east and the San Carlos Ranch Road on the west to attend this meeting, which will provide important background information and offer some guidance to mid-Valley residents on fire protection.

This meeting will serve as a prelude to another fire meeting on Monday, July 19, at 8 p.m. at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. At this meeting, mid-Valley residents will be asked to settle on one specific plan to provide fire protection starting next July.

Important school board meeting next Wednesday

The Carmel school board will elect a new president at its annual organization meeting next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Brey Hall at Carmel High School.

This will mark the first meeting for two newly-elected members of the board, Mrs. Pamela Smith and Dr. Charles Snorf.

Several major items are on the evening's agenda, including adoption of the course of study for Carmel High School for 1971-72 and approval of a publication budget for the next fiscal year. The latter will probably be adjusted to include a 5 or 6 percent cost of living salary increase for teachers.

The board will also consider a new school lunch program for next year, which calls for replacing the present full-scale cafeteria operation at Tularcitos School with special "hot pack" lunches prepared at Carmel High School and sent out to all grammar schools at noontime. This is an expansion of the "hot pack" lunch program used at Carmel School last spring.

Business manager Walter Hinton is also recommending that the hot pack lunches be used to supplement the service now available at Middle School. A small bus, formerly used on the Cachagua route, will be converted to a food truck if the plan is approved.

By consolidating food preparation at the high school, he said the district would save 12-man hours a day in costs. However, because of some resignations among cafeteria employees, all remaining workers can be used in the new operation.

Carmel Savings now named Palo Alto-Salinas Savings

Carmel Savings and Loan Association has now officially become Palo Alto-Salinas Savings. A joint announcement made Tuesday by Barnet J. Segal, president of Carmel Savings and Firmin A. Gryp, president of PS told of the consummation of the merger which began with negotiations last year.

Agreement in principle had been reached last January, and approval of the respective stockholders followed. Application was made to governmental authorities in early June.

Assets of the 16-office association, according to Gryp, will exceed one-half billion dollars. Carmel Savings with one office had assets of over $25 million while the PS Association, prior to merger, had assets in excess of $377 million.

With offices spanning northern California from King City and Carmel in the south to Oakland and Menlo Park in the north, the 79-year old association will be one of the ten largest in California.

Beloved Postmaster Sam Brandt dies at 55

Sam Brandt, Carmel Valley's genial postmaster for the last 21 years, lost a battle with cancer on Tuesday.

A popular and respected community leader, he died at Community Hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks. He was 55.

In an era of zip codes, automation and impersonal government, Mr. Brandt put the stamp of his warm, responsive personality on every aspect of the postal operation.

Not only could he greet almost all his patrons by name, he had an uncanny facility for keeping up with their multiple moves, marriages and mis-addressed mail.

When Washington ordered a drastic cutback in hours, he was adamant that the Carmel Valley Post Office would remain open Saturday mornings "so those kids at the Postgraduate School who have to leave so early in the morning and get home late at night can come in." He worked the Saturday morning shift himself, as a matter of routine, for no additional pay.

When guidelines came from Washington about what can be posted inside a U.S. post office (FBI photos and Civil Service notices) or how the place should look (good government gray), he quietly put the notices aside and went right on displaying posters for community organizations and tending the ivy growing through a cracked window at the back of the building.

Tall, slender and handsome, he seemed to have a perpetual twinkle in his eye, and the genuine warmth of his greeting softened the blow when he handed you the mail and it was nothing but bills.

He was fiercely proud of the people who worked with him -- "my kids" he affectionately called them all. One was, in fact, his child -- his daughter Tonia, who started out helping her father cancel mail as a small child and later became a regular employee.

SAM BRANDT

Even with all the small-town folksiness, he kept a sharp eye on the efficiency of his postal operation, and managed to keep pace with a growing population despite cramped quarters and no recent increase in personnel.

Two years ago Postmaster General Winton Blount vacationed in Carmel Valley and paid a friendly visit to 93924. Later he sent a personally inscribed photograph to Mr. Brandt, which now hangs in the back of the post office.

Official commendation, however, was never Mr. Brandt's main interest.

"Washington?" he once commented. "I don't work for Washington. My bosses are all the people we serve. I have about 4,500 bosses in Carmel Valley. As long as they are happy, I am. That's all that's important."

Mr. Brandt was born in Salinas and attended Stanford University. For several years he travelled around the country doing radio announcements for Philip Morris. He served with the U.S. Navy in World War II, and was commissioned postmaster for Carmel Valley in August, 1951.

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock this morning at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove. The Rev. Douglas Keating of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church officiated. Contributions to the Monterey County Cancer Society are preferred.

Mr. Brandt is survived by his wife, Miriam, of 10 Village Drive; four daughters, Tonia, Kim, Shawn, and Rory; three sons, Chris, Craig and Chip Sundlee, all of Carmel Valley; and a devoted group of "kids" at the Carmel Valley Post Office.

Special Odello briefing

Representatives from OLAF, the Carmel Area Coalition and other groups opposed to a high density development on the Odello property have been invited to meet with a special subcommittee of the Planning Commission on Monday to present views on rezoning and future use of the property.

The meeting, scheduled for 4 p.m. at the County Health Department, is one of a series of informal sessions on the Odello development that have been held by commissioners Edward Marcucci, Keith Evans and Leon Stutzman. This meeting is considered a background, information-gathering session only, and is not open to the general public.

The subcommittee has already met with the Odello brothers regarding possible development plans to be presented to the Planning Commission on July 28. The subcommittee will be writing a report, containing specific recommendations, to the Planning Commission before that date.

Commenting on Monday's meeting, Marcucci said: "It is to allow interested parties to see how far we've gotten along on this. This is not a meeting for us (the commissioners) to argue one side or the other, but to listen to what these people have to say, so we will have their views for our report."

Launch drive for fire protection in mid-Valley

Several persons interested in the drive to establish a County Service Area for fire protection in mid-Carmel Valley were briefed on the issues involved at a meeting held Tuesday night.

The small briefing session in the library of Carmel High School was called by the Ad Hoc Committee for Fire Protection for the Mid-Valley, which is holding a major public hearing on Monday, July 19, at 8 p.m. at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Persons at the meeting generally agreed that the mid-Valley would do well to form a service area, which is administered by the County, and contract with the State Division of Forestry to provide the required number of firemen.

Their salaries, along with the cost of purchasing fire equipment and building a small station somewhere in the mid-Valley, would be paid for by taxes assessed on the anticipated $15 million valuation of property in the area.

Committee co-chairmen Bill Brown and Michael Tancredi said that the service area would save some money by contracting with the State Division of Forestry, since administrative and some personnel costs would be shared on a pro-rate basis with other fire districts.

New redistricting plan would create three coastal supervisors

A new redistricting plan which would give Monterey County three coastal supervisors will be unveiled when the Board of Supervisors continues a public hearing on the matter at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

The latest proposal represents a concerted effort by the cities of Monterey and Salinas and several interested individuals to come up with a plan that protects local communities of interest and still divides the County into five districts of approximately 50,000 persons each.

According to this plan, Supervisor Willard Branson's district would remain virtually the same, except that part of Monterey east of the freeway would be put into Loren Smith's fourth district. All of Carmel Valley up to the Cahoon Ranch would stay in the fifth district.

Smith would keep Seaside, and pick up additional population from Fort Ord. Supervisor Warren Church would become the third coastal supervisor, giving up his present population in the northern part of Salinas in exchange for part of Fort Ord.

The Salinas area would be split between two districts. Board chairman Arthur Atteridge would keep the bulk of Salinas and extend his district through Toro Park, San Benancio and Corral de Tierra.

Finally, the vast third district to the south, which needs to pick up a substiantial chunk of population to bring it up to par, would include some 18,000 voters in the Alisal area of east Salinas.

The new plan is the least gerrymandered of any proposal given serious consideration, and resolves many of the objections raised to an earlier plan submitted by Church. That proposal split Salinas into three districts, divided Monterey more evenly between Branson and Smith, put the Corral de Tierra-Toro Park area into Smith's district and brought the third district up into Fort Ord to pick up additional population.

The plan will be given a preview Friday by mayors on the Monterey Peninsula.

Huge countersuit filed in airport controversy

BY PAT GRIFFITH

The Carmel Valley Committee for Peace and Quiet fired back at the airport owners Peter and Mary Delfino and unofficial operators Al and Connie Hood last week with a lawsuit asking for a permanent injunction against the airport as it is now operated and a total of $1,055,00 in damages.

In a separate action, key members of the committee named in a $1,200,000 suit filed by the Hoods last month, asked the court to quash that suit on the grounds the Hoods have not posted a $500 bond required in libel and slander actions.

A hearing on this motion is scheduled July 16 at 10 a.m. in Salinas.

The P&Q complaint filed by Attorney Sean Flavin makes three pleas:

1. For a declaration that the present use of the Carmel Valley airport violated the County Zoning Ordinance, and for a permanent injunction against continued "violation".

2. For a declaration that the Hoods' hangar and office, located on residentially-zoned property, violates the County Zoning Ordinance, and for a permanent injunction against their use.

3. For a total of $,1055,000 in damages, including $480,000 in general damages, $225,000 for damages for the loss of the use of private property, and $350,000 in punitive damages.

The plaintiffs on the suit are listed at the Carmel Valley Committee for Peace and Quiet, I.C. Howard, George Lockwood, Marcia Lockwood, John Dowdakin, Oscar Durham, Dorothy Durham, Robert J. Read, Louis Gardiner, Margaret Gardiner, John Sigourney, Nitko Nedeff, Nizza Nedeff, Allen Nadler, Ira R. Nadler, William H. Gorham, Linda Gorham, Frank C. Bresk, Frieda, H. Bresk, Mary Baugh, Elizabeth Granoff, M.R. Blevens, Barbara Blevens, Anders Larsen and Amy Farley Larsen.

The first two causes of action are aimed at overturning the recent ruling of the Board of Supervisors that the airport does have a legal non-conforming use and that the hangar and office are legal auxiliary uses to residential property.

In asking for damages, the plaintiffs charge that the airstrip "constitutes a continuing nuisance" and is responsible for "noise, vibrations, risks of injury and damage" that have caused the plaintiffs "loss of sleep, fatigue, interfered with their normal occupational obligations and social and recreational pursuits . . ."

The damage action also charges that the airport is in an "unsuitable" location because of topography, wind conditions, surrounding development and the proximity of Tularcitos School.

OTHER CHARGES

"The airstrip is improperly operated and maintained in that student and night flying are permitted," the suit states, "and the facility does not comply with Federal Aviation Administration safety standards and causes an unreasonable risk of injury to persons and damage to property in the vicinity."

The Lockwoods are named as "subject to a special risk of injury and their property damage because their property is situated in the clear zone prescribed by the Federal Aviation Administration for such airstrips."

In asking the court to overrule the County supervisors, the suit repeats charges aired at several public hearings that improvements made to the airport last year were in violation of its status as a non-conforming use.

The suit claims that the airport was improved by extending the surfaced runway from 1800 to 2500 feet; grading and surfacing the runway and taxiways; construction of the hangar and "a small administration and terminal building" within the hangar; and installation of tie-down facilities, a two-way radio and public telephone and a reflector system for night landings.

It further charges the defendants with increasing the use of the airport by charging landing and tie-down fees with a system of merchant rebates; operating charter, air taxi and sightseeing services; the commercial sale of aircraft fuel; regular attendance and supervision of the airport and advertising and promotion of its services and facilities.

For all these reasons, the suit says, the airport has undergone "an unlawful enlargement and increase" in its use.

"Such unlawful use of the airstrip is an illegal infringement on the property rights of the plaintiffs and is not a reasonable or necessary operation," the suit argues.

It further notes that the plaintiffs have exhausted all available avenues of appeal to the Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors, which "have failed and refused to enforce the (zoning) ordinance in accordance with its terms."

The legal escalation in the bitter controversy over the airport began in May, when the Hoods filed a damage suit against the P&Q committee and several key members, charging they have misled the public in a printed "fact sheet" and have conspired to ruin the Hoods' personal and business reputation.

Flavin, who has argued the P&Q case before the Planning Commission and supervisors, is one of three attorneys handling the defense of P&Q members named in the Hoods' suit.

EMERGENCY CALLS

It was a cool Fourth of July weekend for the Carmel Valley Fire Department. There were no fires reported—just a couple of calls about fireworks being used at Camp Steffani.

There were two calls for medical assistance over the holiday weekend. On Saturday at 9:11 p.m., Esther Smith, a guest at the Carmel Valley Inn, was taken to Community Hsopital as a medical emergency.

Monday the first aid crew reported to the scene of a motorcycle accident near the Marble ranch on Carmel Valley Road. Philip Gregg of Seaside and Wendy Walker of Oakland were treated at the scene, but declined transportation to a doctor.

Yesterday one of Carmel Valley's top young swimmers, Gerri Brandley, was hurt on her 13th birthday when she was thrown from a horse. She suffered cuts and bruises, but did not require hospitalization.

UNDER THE OAKS & AMONG THE CACTI

By Mildred Hattan

JIM RYAN third baseman for the Tiger Team of the Carmel Valley Little League Majors, was presented the McKenzie Sportsmanship award on Saturday by Scott McKenzie of Loveland, Colo. Scott is the son of the late Don McKenzie who over the years was one of the League's most dedicated supporters. It was at the end of last year's ball season that Mrs. Jean McKenzie offered the first trophy in memory of Don with Jim Giordano selected as the boy most deserving of the honor by all of the boys registered in the League. Jim, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Ryan of Berwick Drive, initially played Little League baseball in Eugene, Ore. Last year, Jim was a member of the Farm team, "The Cubs" and this year was tapped by Roger Sherman and Bill Conlan to play the season on the Tiger team.

Candidates introduced from the other teams were Larry Ocampo, Volunteers; Bill Neidinger, Indians; Rick Palmer, Lions; Robert Cresswell, Cougars; Eric Collas, Pirates; Dario Crippen, Hornets; Larry Cummings Jr., Wolf Pack; and Steve Forzani, Cubs.

Green and gold year pins were presented to each boy who had completed a year as a member of one of the four Major teams.

Winners of the Farm Team pennant for the season was announced as the HORNET'S team coached and managed by David Redman and Dean Brown. Trophies were presented to both the team's coach and to their sponsor, Bank of America (Village and Mid-Valley Branch.) It was a sensational season for the Hornets who lost only one game during the first half of the season and chalked up a SEVEN WIN - NO LOSS record for the second half. Players on the HORNETS team (referred to as "horrendous" by the other four Farm teams!) include Tommy John Bordonaro, Sam Davidson, Steve Draper, Cris Fosso, Ron Gayman, Charles Harlander, Sean George, Garth Hattan, Jonathan Hipp, Roy Kaminske, Steve Middleton, Tim Nielsen, Barry Powell, David Sternberg and Vince Sturgill.

Late afternoon came the announcement of the ALL STARS Teams. Augie Acuna, Lions manager, was announced as manager of the All Stars and Bob Sinclair, manager of the Indians as their coach. Boys named were Greg Miller, Jeff Canadas, Rick Palmer, Bill Collihan, (Lions) Steve Sherman, Tom Frinke, John Frinke, Steve Gere, (Tigers), Larry Ocampo, Steve Seberske, Scott Sweiss (Volunteers) Bill Neidinger, Laurent Longfellow and Greg Thigpen, (Indians) The Peninsula All Star Games will be held for the first time this year at the Valley Field - July 21, 22, 23, 24. The OUTLOOK will carry schedules in a later issue.

TIGERS WIN 1971 MAJOR LEAGUE SERIES

The temporary madness which befalls any ball team and its fans upon winning a pennant at the season's end was witnessed Tuesday night at the Carmel Valley Little League Field when the Tigers (winners of the second half of the Major League series) trounced the Indians (first half winners) with a 6-0 victory in the play-off game.

Tiger Tom Frincke pitched the 6-0 shut-out -- his second of the season. From the first strains of the Star Spangled Banner to the final "out", the Tigers had the game right in their paws . . . 'er mitt! Morgan Ward's hit was credited with the first RBI. Indian scalps dangled from the belts of the entire team who made only one Tiger error.

"The Year of the Tiger" with the pennant . . . the McKenzie award for team mate Jim Ryan . . . four players named to the All Stars -- was not without pitfalls. Steve Sherman was benched for several weeks early in the season with a serious knee injury . . . Shane Hattan broke his leg . . . and Don Clark who joined the Bench Brigade with a broken collar bone. ALL of the Tigers were on the field Tuesday night when Manager Bill Conlan and coach, Roger Sherman accepted the championship trophy. Other players sponsored by Nick Lombardo's Rancho Canada Golf Course were: Vince Cal, Peter Deoudes, John Frincke, Steven Gere, Rogan Hattan, Geoffrey Lee and Tim Sherman . . . Val Verde development gets apparent green light

Final vote Wednesday at 4:00

Casas de Carmel, a development of 45 two-bedroom homes on Val Verde Drive at Carmel Valley Road, received all but the final stamp of approval last week from the Monterey County Planning Commission.

Commissioners indicated informal acceptance of the tentative subdivision map, but put off a final vote until July 14 in order to give the planning staff time to work out some of the fine details with developer Thomas Gamboa.

The tentative subdivision map submitted in Salinas by attorney George Walker was virtually identical in layout to the preliminary map which drew vehement opposition from the commission last month. The only difference was the addition of more off-street parking spaces.

This time, however, the map was accompanied by architects' renderings of the full development showing designs for three roof styles, scores of full-grown trees and extensive landscaping along Carmel Valley Road and Val Verde Drive.

To the obvious surprise of the planning staff, the new map also described the property as 8.1 acres -- not the 7.5 acres which the Board of Supervisors had rezoned to a density of six units per acre.

This prompted a flurry of numbers, with Walker saying the 45-unit development was under its density limit with 5.5 units per acre, while Planning Director Ed De Mars contended it "has always been everyone's assumption that the property is 7.5 acres," which would put the plan at the maximum six units per acre.

The discrepancy in the presumed size of the property was discovered when it was surveyed by engineer Clayton Neill, who confirmed to the commission yesterday that the parcel is 8.1 acres.

This problem was finally set aside with the commission agreeing that the development would not go above 45 units, whatever the precise acreage.

"RURAL EMPHASIS"

Architect Omer Baltan of Redwood City told commissioners that the concept behind the development is to "maintain a rural emphasis and suburban quality." This will be achieved, he said, by having low shake roofs and stucco exteriors.

The curving interior road provides an "interesting layout, Baltan said, "so you're always having a surprise as you walk along."

Finally he said, the plan is designed to "create a park-like setting, a country club atmosphere." This will be brought about by planting "large specimen trees" at the beginning.

Baltan said the proposed layout will have 23 percent of the land covered with buildings, including a recreation building in the center; 17 percent will go to roads and paving, 4.6 percent to patios and walks and 55.4 percent for open space and landscaping.

Potential traffic congestion and the problems of making U-turns at the lower end of Carmel Valley Road, which prompted great concern last month, were raised again by several persons in the audience.

Joe Broadman, whose property on Val Verde is south of the proposed development, asked that a solution to the traffic problem be found before the use permit is approved.

"Remember you're going uphill (from Val Verde Dr.) to get on a freeway," he said. He warned that cars "will come through there in herds . . . 20 or 23 cars at a time gaining speed as they go by Val Verde" after a signal is installed at the intersection of Carmel Knolls Drive and Carmel Rancho Blvd.

Broadman said that now is the time for the road department to come up with a solution because future developments, at six units per acre, can be expected along Val Verde.

Another Val Verde resident, Cole Weston, argued that approval of the tentative map "without a proper entrance is insanity . . . Two hundred cars will never make it. There will be carnage on the highway."

Commission chairman Edward P. Marcucci concurred that "an alternate access is desireable."

BLAMES CARMEL VALLEY ROAD

Commissioner Vaughn Parsons, who had been sharply critical of the preliminary map, said that the problem lies not with new developments, but "with a bad Carmel Valley Road." (At that point, Carmel Valley Road has a planted center divider strip, with two lanes of traffic on either side.)

"The ultimate answer here is going to have to be an exit when Riverwood is completed on Rio Road," he said.

In the meantime, Parsons contended, Val Verde is "no better or worse than most roads coming out onto Carmel Valley Road. I think you have adequate time to come out onto Carmel Valley Road and get in a third lane and make a U-turn."

Noting that the development plans call for 55 percent open space, Parsons continued: "I'm more impressed with this development . . . Unless you want to nit-pik, I really don't find anything objectionable. I think the amenities have been more than adequately provided for. I don't see any reason to delay this further."

Representing the Carmel Area Coalition, Victoria Gibson said the new plan "is still crowded and congested," and questioned whether or not Gamboa should be allowed to build a large recreation building in addition to the allowable density.

"Common sense would seem to indicate that you can't fill up open space with accessory buildings," she said.

Although the commission did not answer her question directly, DeMars said later that accessory buildings are permitted in addition to the prescribed density per acre, provided that the additional buildings are not to be lived in.

Other concerns expressed last month were answered by Walker, who said that the development will be hooked up to the Carmel Sanitary District, that drainage water will be channeled through a culvert in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center to the Carmel River, that parking provisions exceed what is required by zoning ordinances, and that easements are provided for hiking and riding trails.

Walker said that there will be a homeowners association which will make sure the property is well maintained and that boats and other recreational gear is kept out of sight. Each unit will have a two-car enclosed garage, part of which could be used for storage.

After hearing the full presentation, commissioner Keith Evans said "I feel the problems have been generally solved. We do have a grave problem of access from Val Verde to Carmel Valley Road . . . (but) I don't believe we can hold it up because presently there is a poor and difficult access."

Over Walker's objections, the matter was then continued to July 14, in order to clarify the width of the interior roads and parking areas. Parsons voted against the continuance.

'Man of La Mancha' enjoying hit run at Circle Theatre

"It is the most successful show we've had in our 11 year history, barring none," Michael Keller said of the Community Theater of the Monterey Peninsula's Circle Theatre production of "Man of La Mancha."

The present run of the musical opened July 18th and each of the 11 performances so far have been a sellout, which was the case with all 20 performances of the play given at the Circle last February and March.

With a seating capacity of 150, it means that about 4,500 persons have seen the play in the Carmel theatre. Or, at least, it would mean that if so many people were not coming back again and again for more.

"They don't fail to tell us, either," says Keller, who directed "Man of La Mancha," "Some come back and it's the second time, the fourth time, I think the record is five."

Because of the enthusiasm with which the musical has been received, last week the theatre, which had been presenting the play just Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, added Wednesday and Thursday performances.

Discussing the February and March run, Keller said "never in our lives had we spent so much money for royalties and costumes, but it proved to be the biggest success we have ever had."

Although the run drew an attendance of 3,000 to the performances, Keller thinks the summer run will surpass that figure with the added Wednesday and Thursday performances.

While "Man of La Mancha" itself must be given much credit for the success of the run, Keller thinks that "even more than the play I think it is the dedication of our actors. I have rarely seen a company of actors working so damn hard on a show. They're the most wonderful people I've ever met."

Keller said the rapport "between the actors and the audience is a fascinating thing to watch.

"To watch what happens between the actors and the audience, in the confines of that small arena, it's a terrific thing.

"Another phenomenon that is occurring that is most rare in our theatre is the people rising in a standing ovation. They come up en masse as a group." And there's no prompting, he adds.

"We are trying desperately to bring the best possible theatre we can to the community, that is for sure."

Keller reported that the show is again selling out in advance for Friday and Saturday performances. The final night is July 24.

Reservations can be made by calling the theatre's 24-hour answering service at 624-2669.

'Fiddler on the Roof' to be staged in Salinas

"Fiddler on the Roof," the seventh annual summer musical production of Salinas Performing Arts, will be presented July 16, 23, 24, 30 and 31. Performances will be at the Salinas High Auditorium, on South Main Street, with curtain time at 8:30 p.m.

A cast of over 30 singers and dancers will perform in "Fiddler," to the accompaniment of a full orchestra. Dr. Jeffrey Braff will produce the show, which will be directed by Joseph Yedlicka. Musical Director will be Gary Horseley; Choreographer, Maureen Sullivan; Costumer, Pat Fowler and head of the Make-up Crew will be Linda Cooper. Sets for the show, which involves seventeen scene changes, were designed by Director Yedlicka and constructed under his direction.

Mike Rega and Marcie Schumacher will star as Tevye, the dairyman, and his wife Golde. Their five unmarried daughters will be portrayed by Carol Ann Hughes, Gail Macgowan, Susan Johnson, Liz Eldredge and Karen Royal. Featured as three of their suitors will be Tony Hernandez, Terry Smith and Mark Greenlaw.

"Fiddler on the Roof," with book by Joseph Stein, music by Jerry Bock and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick, is based on well loved stories by Sholom Aleichem. The Tevye stories were first dramatized by Arnold Perl as "The World of Sholom Aleichem," and later as "Tevye and His Daughters," before presentation in musical form. Set in the Russia of 1905, its themes of crumbling traditions, parents deploring the rebelliousness of their children, and a minority's oppression, have never been more relevant.

Salinas Performing Arts President, Dr. James Hicks, urges Carmel Valley residents to attend this, the first community theatre production of "Fiddler onthe Roof" in the area. Internationally acclaimed for its productions in over 21 countries, "Fiddler" also received the coveted New York Drama Critics Circle award and nine "Tony awards following its premiere in September 1964. Tickets will be available at the door on the evenings of performances, and at Gadsby's Music Company in Salinas.

Sunset views:

Forest Theater summer programs now underway

BY FRANK H. RILEY, MANAGER SUNSET CENTER

Sunday, the Fourth, saw the first of the 1971 summer programs at Forest Theater. Featured were the splendid chorus of the Monterey Chapter SPEBSQSA, directed by Neil Keefer, plus two great quartets, the Stablemates from Salinas and the Fancy Dans from San Diego. The program was varied, spirited, and well received by a comparatively small but enthusiastically appreciative audience. For those who like statistics, our box score for the day shows attendance of 167 persons, plus 27 performers and 3 staff, for a total of 197 -- about four percent of the City's population.

This Sunday, the 11th, Forest Theater will present James Shuck, pianist and John F. Morrice, violinist. These young men were winners in the M.P. Chamber Music Society competition. Much has been said of the influence Forest Theater has had on the careers of aspiring young artists. Here is an example of the continuing policy of providing exposure for young performers at Forest. The extent and the effectiveness of that exposure, of course, depends to a large degree upon how many of you attend and lend your encouragement.

See you Sunday?

Another first for the week -- opening rehearsals for the Bach Festival. Music and musicians, directors and stage hands, lighting experts and cookie dispensers all weave in and out, gradually working out a corrdinated unity of facilities, people, programs and staging, which all ends up as the magnificent 34th season of the Carmel Bach Festival. A 34-year tradition with a spirit as young as tomorrow.

We have been offered a rather spectacular series of shows including such attractions as an eastern European folk-dance ensemble, a youthful singing group, and even an ice show! Of course, such shows are pretty expensive to import, and so would necessitate an assured sale of season tickets or some other local guarantee to underwrite the expense. We hesitated to sign up, having reservations about the support we might receive. If you have comments, we surely would like to hear from you.

Don't forget that the "Civilisation" movie series begins at the NPG School this Sunday at 7 p.m. You can pick up your free tickets at the Sunset Office between 9 and 12 or 1 and 5 daily except Saturdays and Sundays.

Wednesdays the Patio Picnic Days continue. Bring your lunch and join us. We have the coffee.

Defending titlist to play in Trans-Miss golf tourney next week

Allen Miller III, of Pensacola, Florida, has joined the field of over 200 top-rated United States amateurs who will compete in the 68th Trans-Mississippi Gold Championship to be played at Pebble Beach July 12-18.

Miller, who is the Trans-Miss defending champion, was on both the 1969 and 1971 Walker Cup teams, the 1970 Eisenhower Trophy Team and participated in the 1970 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, also held at Pebble Beach.

John Farquhar of Amarillo, Texas, was a member of the 1971 Walker Cup Team, carded the lowest amateur score in the 1964 US Open, was 5th in the 1969 US Amateur and 11th in the 1970 US Amateur.

Competition will be over the championship Spyglass Hill golf course which is rated No. 1 in California.

Following two days of qualifying, match play will begin on Wednesday with competition among the low 64 scorers, while the next 32 will make up the President's flight.

Also coming to Pebble Beach is Ignacio de la Borbolla of Mexico who at the age of 15 was the 1966 Junior Golf Champion of Mexico.

The public is invited to gallery the matches at no charge.

Celebrities sparkle at festive Eastwood tournament

Photos by William C. Brooks

ENJOYING THE VIEW FROM THE SIDELINES, Jabby (Mrs. Dennis) Hess watches the action during the Eastwood Tennis Tournament with Merv Griffin. Mrs. Hess, the granddaughter of the late S.F.B. Morse, was one of the participants in the tournament. She and her daughter, Whitney, 1½, were houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Davidson of Los Ranchitos.

YOU'D NEVER KNOW IT from her smile, but Jan (Mrs. Ken) Gardner of Carmel Valley, left, had one of the toughest jobs during the Eastwood tournament. She was chairman of the highly successful Gala, which sold out in advance, leaving dozens of unhappy visitors trying to get tickets. Here she enjoys a respite at a cocktail party given by the Alfred Gawthrops with James "Lefty" Brown and Mrs. Edgar Bergen.

THE FOURTH OF JULY found Candy Gregory, left, with her mother, Deirdre and celebrity tennis contestant Bob Reade stoking a bonfire on the beach by the Beach and Tennis Club. Later a spectacular aerial fireworks display was launched from the end of the pier at left.

THE LAST PRE-SCHOOLERS have smeared finger paints and romped under the trees at the Playtime Nursery School in Robles del Rio. Owner Betty Antoncich, left, has decided to close the school after 18 years. With her is Doris Mark, who has directed the school for the past five years, with the assistance of Frieda Bresk. Playtime nursery school is closing

The swinging gate which has led hundreds of Carmel Valley children to the Playtime Nursery School in Robles del Rio will be locked in September.

After 18 years and some 650 students, Betty Antoncich is closing the popular pre-school at her home on Upper Circle "because times have changed...and our Valley is getting to be more of an adult community, with fewer and fewer three-year-olds."

This will leave the Valley with just one full-fledged nursery school, the cooperative Carmel Valley Parent Nursery School at the Community Chapel.

"I am sorry, because it has been a marvelous experience," Mrs. Antoncich said Tuesday. "Every one of my kids came here, and later on it was a great place for them to learn to work with children. This school was right for its time, but now it seems as though it has served its purpose."

In fact, she noted, time has now come full circle, and many of her students from the early days are now parents themselves.

It is likely they would all agree with her that "few schools anywhere have such a nice physical setting." The cozy red frame building, completely scaled to childish dimensions, opens onto an enchanted garden, where tire swings dangle from mammoth oak limbs and birds and flowers abound.

Mrs. Antoncich was full of praise for Doris Mark, who has been part of the school for eight years and director for the past five.

"She's so outstanding...I've never seen a better nursery school. I frankly think she's too good to be kept here. She should go into something bigger. Students at Monterey Peninsula College have done practice teaching there as part of a course on early child development, and recently a training film was made at the school.

Right now Mrs. Antoncich is taking inventory of all the nursery school equipment—puzzles, books, furniture, art supplies, dolls, wheel toys and unopened boxes of cookies and crackers. She hopes to sell everything at one time to someone who would like to open a new nursery school.

When everything is cleared out, she plans to convert the small school building to a guest house.

Corps of Engineers report underscores need for flood plain zoning

"Flood waters swirled into a score of houses near the mouth of the storm-fed Carmel River today, forcing some residents to evacuate. Waters began subsiding shortly before noon after the mouth of the river was opened by a bulldozer, but the danger of more flooding remained because of an incoming tide and more showers expected tonight.

Damage already is estimated in the thousands of dollars.

"The river was fed by the overflowing San Clemente and Los Padres dams which were filled by the heavy rain storm...Depth of the rapidly moving water at the Carmel River bridge reached 15 feet at 11 a.m., stopping after the mouth was opened. The river had risen at the rate of one foot per hour. Flood level at the bridge is 24 feet. The river bed at this area was dry yesterday.

"Carmel Bay was filled with debris and stained brown by the onrushing river water.

"There was six inches of water in every room at the home of Leonard Heller at 16th and Camino Real. Throughout the John P. Kunstle home...there was two feet of water.

"The water swept over the playgrounds at the Carmel River School.

"Residents in that area placed sandbags around their homes, many of which were isolated by the water which flooded the streets."

---Monterey Herald, Feb. 10, 1962

That was just a minor flood on the Carmel River, a flash that came quickly and subsided almost as fast.

It was nothing when compared to April, 1958, when a major flood inundated homes and washed away property to the extent of $300,000 in damages. That year 1000 people were evacuated from property on or near the Carmel River.

According to the Army Corps of Engineers, the 1958 flood ranks as a "20-year" flood, meaning that a flood of that severity could be expected to occur about five times in a 100-year period.

This does not mean, however, that a flood of that magnitude occurs in 20-year cycles. Records show that flood years often occur in bunches.

The Corps of Engineers says that major flood have occured on the Carmel River in 1862, 1911, 1914, 1938, 1945, 1955, 1958, 1962 and 1969.

The greatest documented flood was in March, 1911, during which, according to witnesses, "just about everything in Carmel Valley washed out."

This flood was estimated to be a 100-year flood -- a flood of such severity that it would happen only once during this century. Yet, according to the Corps of Engineers, "another flood almost as severe occurred in 1914. Thus, two statistically improbable events occurred back-to-back, so to speak, within a time interval of only three years."

SO WHAT'S NEW?

Much has changed since 1914.

San Clemente Dam was built in 1921, and although it is intended solely for water storage and not flood control, it probably did lessen the impact of the six major floods that have washed through the Valley since it was completed.

The character of the Valley has changed drastically since 1914.

Gone are the ranches and farms that once covered the Valley floor, replaced by shopping centers, suburban developments and high-density communities such as Hacienda Carmel.

The lush hillsides are dotted with homes, and water that once was absorbed into the ground now runs off carports and patios and roof tops, then streams down asphalt ribbons until it reaches the river.

Even the trees and dense underbrush which once lined the river are thinned out and, in some places, gone, taking with them the natural barriers to erosion of the riverbanks.

What was once a beautiful, undeveloped Valley susceptible to flooding is now a beautiful, well-populated Valley even more susceptible to flooding.

And almost nobody wants to do anything about it.

For several months now, at an assortment of hearings before the Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors, there have been repeated reminders about the very real problem of floods.

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, among others, has asked the County to establish flood-plain zoning along the Carmel River. A flood plain ordinance is already on the books.

Flood Plain 1 is an area which is a primary flood area, namely the bottom of the riverbed.

Flood Plain 2 is the area likely to be flooded by a stream overflowing its banks.

Flood Plain 3 may lie within either of the above areas, but is property that is protected by dikes or similar means.

The purpose of establishing flood plain zoning would be two-fold:

First, it would limit new development in areas immediately adjacent to the Carmel River. This would be to the County's benefit, since the County must pay to bail out flooded homeowners, repair roads, etc.

Second, it would enable persons who now own property along the river to apply for federally-financed flood insurance. This reasonably-priced insurance is available only to persons living in areas that have officially been labeled flood plains. Application for this insurance must be made before December 31, which means the Board of Supervisors would have to approve flood plain zoning before then.

OFFICIAL VIEWPOINT

At the moment, it is doubtful that this will happen.

"There is obviously a need for flood plain zoning," Planning Director Ed DeMars said last week, "but there has never been any outcry for it.

"Attempts have been made on two occasions, and they never got off the ground."

DeMars said it has been the experience of the Planning Department that "the only time people get excited is when water comes in the front door and out the back.

"We continue to be very interested in doing something about this, and quite frustrated because no one in the Valley seems very enthusiastic."

Supervisor Willard Branson has had much the same experience. Last year he introduced a Carmel River Ordinance, which had as its primary purpose the preservation of existing riverbanks and the prevention of pollution caused by dumping or just plain carelessness.

This ordinance was scuttled by residents living along the river, who said it would hamper their individual efforts to fight erosion and would be just one more law to harrass the property owner.

In recent months, Branson has received a few letters from individuals asking for the establishment of flood plain zoning. In addition to the CVPOA and the Carmel Area Coalition, he has heard from two river dwellers, Ed Lee and William Brown, and a few others "who live on high ground."

Still, according to Branson, there has been no sign of a "concerted effort" in this direction, and he suspects that most people want to wait for the new Corps of Engineers report on the river before any action is taken.

WHAT THE ENGINEERS THINK

The Corps of Engineers is presently engaged in still another study of the Carmel River. What its recommendations will be remain to be seen.

But it is hard to see how the Corps can do anything but restate and re-emphasize many of the points it raised in its May, 1967, study entitled "Flood Plain Information -- Carmel River."

The very blunt language in that report was aimed at the Monterey County government and the residents of Carmel Valley. And according to DeMars, the planning staff agrees with the report right down the line.

Among other things, the report says:

"The interest of the County of Monterey is to protect the public health and safety, and to reduce the financial burden imposed on the entire community in event of a flood disaster in certain areas. This can be done by implementing flood plain zoning regulations to discourage developments that might be damaged by floodflows. Monterey County has no comprehensive flood plain zoning in effect at the present time (1967), and many examples of improvements, the location of which show impudent disregard of nature's capriciousness, are in evidence."

The report says this about developments along the Carmel River:

"The Carmel River Valley has been experiencing rapid residential, retirement community and commercial development, parallel to the growth rate experienced by the State of California in recent years. Extensive areas of recently constructed residential and retirement community subdivisions, as well as some important public utilities, are subject to periodic flooding.

"Other developments now in the advanced design or construction phase will be located on the flood plain. In the past, most of the land in Carmel Valley was utilized for moderate to highly productive agricultural uses. Flood damages were limited to relatively infrequent crop losses.

"However, with urban development, monetary losses to individuals, businesses and public property from flood overflow and poor drainage have greatly increased. With further development successive flood plain losses will multiply.

"Since the greater portion of the Carmel River flood plain has not yet been developed, steps should be taken toward zoning or construction of flood-control works to prevent proliferation of damages from future floods that may be expected to occur."

As for flooding and the Carmel Sewage Treatment Plant, the report observes:

"The sewage treatment plant for the City of Carmel is located on the flood plain at an elevation prone to relatively frequent flooding. Past floods have interfered with proper operation, and though damages were mostly of a maintenance nuisance nature, the flood situation could cause serious health hazards in the Carmel River Beach State Park, located downstream at the mouth of the river.

"Though the location of the installation is deemed compatible with rational use of flood plain land, the present flood situation represents a severe deterrent to possible future developments downstream, due to the health hazards in times of even minor flooding.".. It contains this warning about future floods:

"A repetition of the flood of April 1958 would interrupt traffic, create a threat to public health and cause mass evacuation of people and chattel property from homes built in low areas.

"While the area inundated would be similar, the resultant damages would be greater today, due to the increase in the number of dwellings within the flood plain."

Finally, this is what the Corps of Engineers hoped to accomplish with their 1967 report:

"Attention is directed to the fact that neither does the scope of the investigation nor the extent of this report include plans for flood protective works, or for the direct solution of flood problems created by the Carmel River.

"Rather, it is intended to provide herewith the bases for further study and planning on the part of local interests in arriving at solutions to minimize vulnerability to flood damages. Such study and planning in most cases will involve local programs to guide property developments by controlling the type of use made of the flood plain properties through zoning and subdivision regulations, and any actual construction of such improvements of or flood protection works themselves should be performed only after a careful engineering study with permit process, or a combination of these two approaches as might be in order."

So that's where things stood in 1968, one year before the overflowing Carmel River washed out two expensive chunks of Carmel Valley Road and almost toppled Robinson Canyon Bridge.

That was nowhere near a 20-year flood.

And Carmel Valley residents, for the most part, remain apathetic or firmly opposed to the type of planning recommended by the Corps of Engineers -- "local programs to guide property developments by controllong the type of use made of the flood plain properties through zoning and subdivision regulations..."

THE CARMEL RIVER is a sometimes thing, as any Valley resident can testify. At left is how it looks about now—lots of rocks and sand, but only a few puddles of water. Six months from now it may well be a fast-flowing torrent, cutting away at unprotected banks and washing over nearby property, as it was in the picture above.

By PAT GRIFFITH

If Carmel Valley residents really want flood plain zoning, they can have it for the asking. But if they want flood plain zoning just so they can then qualify for federal flood insurance, that's a different story.

This was the essence of what County Counsel William Stoffers told the Board of Supervisors Tuesday when the subject of flood plain zoning came up in a letter from the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

The CVPOA has repeatedly urged the supervisors to establish flood plain zoning along the Carmel River. In its latest letter, the CVPOA said this was a matter of some urgency because of federal flood insurance.

It has been the understanding of CVPOA board members that the federal program will be available to homeowners only until the end of this year, and that in order to qualify for this insurance, the individual must live on land that has been zoned as a flood plain by the county.

Stoffers said that as he understood the legislation, there can be no application for flood insurance unless it is done on a county-wide basis.

He said this would entail a petition requesting a flood plain study from persons living all over the county. Then the county would have to send our engineers to survey likely flood areas and report back to the supervisors, who could, at that point, declare such areas to be part of a flood plain zone. Then people could apply for the federally-backed insurance.

However, Stoffers told the Outlook, if people in Carmel Valley want to have the existing flood plain zoning ordinance applied just because it seems like a sensible thing to do, that can happen relatively quickly.

All that would take, he said, is some indication of broad support from Valley residents—i.e. a petition to the Board of Supervisors.

He said that the results of the CVPOA questionnaire, showing 49 percent of 373 persons responding in favor of a flood control district for the Valley, does not really qualify as an expression of support for flood plain zoning.

The supervisors directed chairman Arthur Atteridge to write a letter to the CVPOA explaining all this. Stoffers said he doesn't plan to pursue the matter further.

Directional signs approved for Carmel Rancho Center

The Carmel Rancho Shopping Center won approval from the Board of Supervisors Tuesday to put up two directional signs on the center's property, facing Carmel Rancho Blvd.

The board's ruling overturned the decision of the Planning Commission, which had denied a zoning permit for the signs.

The supervisors attached several conditions to the permit. The signs will be limited to no more than 35 square feet each, and may list only the category of service offered in the center, such as "hardware store" or "restaurant", but not the name of individual businesses.

The signs will face Carmel Rancho Blvd. so that motorists entering the shopping center will know what is available on either side of the road. The signs must be set at least 210 feet south of the intersection with Carmel Valley Road, and will not be seen from Carmel Valley Road.

The supervisors also decided that while it is all right for the signs to say "Carmel Rancho Shopping Center", the words "Welcome to" above that are unacceptable.

Two other applications for signs along Carmel Valley Road were turned down by the Planning Commission last week.

Commissioners first turned down a request by the Hatch Cover Restaurant in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center for a sign at the back of the building, facing Carmel Valley Road.

Attorney Brian Finegan, representing the restaurant, said the sign was necessary because the commission had earlier denied an overall sign for the shopping center itself.

"I think if this is allowed, we'll just be flooded with applications from every business in that area," commented commissioner Keith Evans.

Evans said he thought the commission had erred in giving permission for other signs along Carmel Valley Road, and said that "the fewer signs we have visible from that road the better off we are."

On a similar application, the commission directed the Adobe Oaks motel in the Village to remove credit card signs which had been attached to the motel's main sign on Carmel Valley Road.

A month ago Blanquita's Restaurant, one business removed from the motel, was also ordered to take down credit card signs that had been put up without a permit.

County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon said the ruling was in line with "a continuing policy against allowing credit card signs in the Village."

It's big time Rodeo week in Salinas

The "Big Hat" barbecue attended Wednesday night by more than 2,000 rodeo fans at the Monterey County Sheriff's Possee grounds marked the start of the annual "Big Week" activities in Salinas.

From now until the opening of the California Rodeo, July 15 through 18, there will be a continuous round of Western activities as the county capital prepares for the 60th annual cowboy classic.

Thursday was Western dress day all over Salinas and Friday sees the opening of the Foley and Burk carnival and sidewalk sales by the merchants which will continue through Saturday.

Rodeo week will start off with Western entertainment in the shopping centers and industrial plants on Monday and Tuesday.

The Kiddie Kapers, in which some 3,000 children from all parts of the county participate, will be Wednesday night and, on Thursday the four-day rodeo will get underway.

EILEEN DUFUR

A distinguished Carmel Valley photographer

By PAT GRIFFITH

Some women go into a state of emotional collapse when their last child leaves home for good. Others never have time to fall apart—they're too busy pursuing all the special interests they put aside during years of tending children.

Such was the case with Eileen Dufur, who seized upon her new-found lesiure a few years ago to embark on a new and challenging pasttime—photography.

"I was at the point where I really needed something to do all my own," she recalls.

So she started out with the basics, learning how to handle a camera under the tutelage of one of Carmel's premier photographers, Al Weber.

After two years studying with Weber, she spent a semester with Geraldine Sharp and took a workshop with Ansel Adams at Monterey Peninsula College.

This formal instruction and expert guidance polished raw enthusiasm into a fine, creative talent that has won her the respect of her colleagues as well as prizes in numerous exhibits.

Several of Mrs. Dufur's photographs are on display in the "Thirty-nine California Photographers" exhibit at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove.

This show is sponsored by the Eikon Gallery of Monterey and the Pacific Grove Art Center, and will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Sunday.

Following the show, some of her photographs will be available at the Eikon Gallery, and anyone going to the Monterey County Fair will undoubtedly see more of her work displayed then.

Now living in a pleasant home on Lower Circle in Robles del Rio, (where she has to use the bathroom for her darkroom), she has lived in this area almost all her life.

As a child she lived in Carmel "when it was nothing but a little Village, and you could walk home from a show at 11 or 12 at night and nobody worried about anything."

She has fond memories of mussel feeds behind the old Bayview School, a stretch of deserted beach that also produced large red abalones.

"You didn't have to fight the tourists at all," she sighs.

And just about now, every year, she and her friends used to ride from Carmel to Salinas for the rodeo parades—by horseback all the way.

"Certainly we expected Carmel to grow some," she says, "but never, never to catch on the way it has...It's still charming, of course, but all those people..."

She is quick to add that Carmel Valley has also changed since the long-gone days when she and her family drove out the twisting, narrow, rutted Carmel Valley Road to swim in idyllic bliss at Camp Steffani.

It was during all these years that she, and later her daughters, came to know the old-time "real" artists of Carmel.

Long-time readers of the Outlook will remember many stunning photographs of Mrs. Dufur's which have appeared in the past. These photographs, we feel, represent a cross-section of some of her finest work.
